OIL LAND LEASES MAY BE REVOKED

Congress Almost Certain to Take Early Action.

WALSH TO REPORT MONDAY

President Coolidge Watching Closely All Developments in the Investigation, but Will Take No Action Until the Senate Has Completed Its Inquiry and Congress Has Acted, Caraway's Charges Denied.

Washington, Jan. 19.—As a result of revelations made in the senate committee's investigation into the transfer of government oil reserve lands to private ownership, it became practically certain that congress will demand revocation of leases in the Teapot Dome and other sections.

This action will take the form of a joint resolution calling on President Coolidge to set aside these leases. The president is watching closely all developments in the investigation, but will take no action until the senate has completed its inquiry and congress has acted.

Senators who are following every move in the investigation say that it promises to disclose one of the worst scandals in the official life of Washington.

Action by the president could be in the form of an executive order canceling the oil leases, or an instruction to the attorney general to prosecute, or both.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, a member of the public lands committee, to which the senate confided the investigation, will report to the committee next Monday. He will submit the results of his trip to Palm Beach, Fla., where, by authority of the committee, he questioned Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, regarding Mr. McLean's alleged (and denied) loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who executed the leases. This transfer placed the Teapot Dome and other exceedingly valuable oil properties in the hands of Secretary Fall.

The charges made by Senator Caraway in his speech in the senate last Wednesday, in which he declared that the leasing of Teapot Dome by Secretary Fall was a "gigantic conspiracy," have brought a flood of letters to senators and representatives which show that the whole country is aroused over the matter.

Senator Caraway's charges have been denied by former Secretary Fall in a statement issued in New Orleans, in which he declares he received no compensation from the Sinclair oil interests in connection with the Teapot Dome lease. This denial was read with considerable interest by senators who have been following the investigation. It probably will lead to more debate in the senate by Caraway and others.

The chief point in controversy revolves about the $100,000 which Secretary Fall admits he received several months after the Teapot Dome lease was executed, the money being used by him in the purchase of another ranch in New Mexico. Fall, in a letter to the investigating committee, declared he got this money from Edward B. McLean, and the committee subsequently received a communication from McLean's lawyers admitting this was so.

BOK TO TESTIFY

Notifies Senate Committee He Will Appear Next Monday.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Edward M. Bok, promoter of the $100,000 Bok peace plan award, notified the selected committee of the senate named to investigate league of nations and other propaganda that he will appear before the committee Monday.

Miss Esther Everett Lape, the other witness thus far called, also is expected to appear. Bok had planned to leave his Philadelphia home Sunday night for a winter sojourn in Florida. He will stop here en route south.

From Bok and Miss Lape the committee, headed by Senator Moses, expects to obtain a long list of witnesses to summon in addition to members of the jury of award and the policy committee supervising the Bok contest and the referendum. Miss Lape, as member in charge of the policy committee, is understood to possess more detailed knowledge of the whole matter than any other one person, unless it be Bok himself.

RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA

Race On Between Great Britain France and Italy.

Moscow, Jan. 19.—According to soviet officials, a race for early recognition of soviet Russia is now going on between Britain, Italy and France. Recognition by Italy, it is declared, is expected any day. Italy and Russia mutually renouncing all financial claims. France is said to be endeavoring to anticipate recognition of Russia by the British Labor cabinet, which is expected to take office next week. The French fear that a British and Russian understanding with Italy's support, would enable a revision of the Versailles treaty, and that it might also cause the formation of a bloc consisting of Britain, Germany, Italy and Russia against France and the little entente. It is reported that President Millerand of France is now in favor of a speedy understanding with Russia.

GREB EASY WINNER OVER WILSON

Shows Mastery in All but Three of Fifteen Rounds.

New York, Jan. 19.—Harry Greb and Johnny Wilson fought 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden last night, the former winning the decision.

"The Pittsburgh windmill," who won his title from Wilson at the Polo grounds last summer, had no difficulty defending it against Wilson. He won, in the language of the game, as far as you can shoot a rifle. He slapped and mauled and otherwise mistreated John Panica Wilson in all but about three of 15 rounds, and a lot of the fellows who paid $50 and $37 to see the fight, had gone expecting to see John Panica win, at that.

Greb reduced from the 171 pounds at which he fought Gene Tunney about a month ago, to 158½ pounds for this fight. He will pay in future years for this reduction a very heavy price. He was as fast as ever, however, thrashing around Wilson at high speed. The New York Italian did not make as good a fight against Greb as he did at the Polo grounds. He could not get his face and head out of the way of Greb's right hand, which Greb would boldly lift in clear warning that he meant to deliver a punch with it.

Mrs. Kraus Refused Parole. Columbus, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Susan B. Kraus, serving an indeterminate sentence in the Marysville reformatory for women for uttering a forged instrument, has been refused a parole and her plea has been continued until January, 1925, by the board of clemency. No protests were made against a parole for Mrs. Kraus, who is alleged to have fled her friends out of approximately $300,000, the board said. Mrs. Kraus has been in the reformatory for about 14 months. She was sent up from Pomeroy.

Gold, silver and bank notes, $10,000, were scattered in a New York street when an armored car loaded with money overturned after colliding with another motor car. Mrs. Angelina Cattamp, injured in the collision, died on the way to a hospital.

GIRL FILES SUIT FOR A MILLION

Gites Mother in Affidavit as One of Defendants.

TELLS STORY OF ALLEGED PLOT

Plaintiff Claims She Was Drugged With Morphine and Held a Prisoner For Months—Impelling Motive, Girl Alleges, Was an Effort to Force Her Into Silence—Mother Denies Accusations.

New York, Jan. 19.—Miss Helen J. French, a dashing brunette of 23, told an amazing story of an alleged plot in which she says she was drugged with morphine and held a prisoner for months. Her story became public when she began suit for $1,000,000 damages.

Her story is all the more astounding because one of the defendants is her mother, whom she designates in the suit as both Helen F. Darling and Mrs. William W. Stevenson. Other defendants are William W. Stevenson, comptroller of the Mutual Life Assurance company, and Dr. Joseph Henry Cahoon.

The impelling motive for the alleged conspiracy, Miss French says, was an effort to force her into silence as to an alleged intrigue which she says has existed between her mother and Stevenson.

The mother declared: "I will not discuss such nonsense." Both Stevenson and Dr. Cahoon denied the charges.

Miss French, who is said to be helpless to a substantial sum, says in her affidavit: "When I came to live with my mother, about a year ago, after a long absence, during which I toured the world, I found Dr. Cahoon was a daily and nightly visitor, coming in the evening, morning and sometimes during the night. They tried to get me to become a drug addict—both Dr. Cahoon and mother, as well as Mr. Stevenson, which I naturally refused.

"Because I remonstrated with them that it was an outrageous piece of work and that I would inform the authorities, I was kept a prisoner at home for months at a time. When least expected an injection of morphine would be given me by Dr. Cahoon. I became virtually out of my mind from the treatment.

"Last April I was given such an injection and the next thing I knew I was in a sanitarium, having been taken there in Mr. Stevenson's car. I was kept there two months, all liberties denied, and all bills paid by Mr. Stevenson. When I came out conditions continued as before. It seems that the three were afraid I would get away and show them up—show the lives they had been living and how they had treated me."

She goes on to tell how she was confined in a second sanitarium in New Jersey, from which she fled in the night by making a rope with the sheets on her bed and sliding from the second story window. She made her way to New York and to the home of friends, to whom she told her story and retained an attorney.

INQUIRY UNDER WAY

Cause and Effect of Airship Shenandoah's Flight to Be Probed.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Investigation of the cause and effects of the thrilling runaway flight of the navy dirigible Shenandoah Wednesday night, when she broke from her mooring mast and rode out a 70-mile gale in badly damaged condition, was begun by the house naval affairs committee today. The committee's inquiry is directed particularly with the view of determining the wisdom and value of the proposed flight of the Shenandoah to the North pole next spring and the ability of the giant craft successfully to negotiate the unprecedented voyage.

Secretary of the Navy Denby, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department, who has been designated by the department, will appear before the committee to give the members the benefit of their knowledge and opinion. The carrying out of plans for the polar flight may depend upon the results of the committee's inquiry and findings. There has developed some opposition to the expedition, on the ground that it unnecessarily jeopardizes the lives of the crew.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Protest Barnett Parole.

Toledo, Jan. 19.—Civic organizations, especially women's clubs, are securing signatures to their protests against the action of the board of paroles in granting freedom to David Barnett, wealthy Toledoan, now confined in Mansfield reformatory, following his conviction upon a charge of molesting six little girls. These protests will be presented to Daniel W. Williams, member of the state board of paroles, upon his arrival here next week, he having been directed by Governor Donahey to come here and secure first hand information as to the merits of Barnett's case before the parole, granted on condition that he leave the state, becomes effective, Feb. 1.

Slayer Granted Stay.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Ohio supreme court granted a stay of execution until Feb. 8 to Mike Sipsich of Duncanwood, Harrison county, under sentence of death in the Ohio penitentiary for the murder of his wife. The original date for Sipsich's execution was Jan. 25. Sipsich, a native of Serbia, shot his wife. It is charged, during a Serbian party, because she had refused to give him more money to continue in a poker game.

Suspension of Car Service Looms.

Akron, O., Jan. 19.—Suspension of all streetcar service in Akron at midnight, Jan. 31, seemed certain when officials of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company refused definitely to extend the present 5-cent fare for two months, pending completion of new franchise negotiations. An ordinance passed by council, the traction company was given six days in which to accept the terms or tear up its tracks Feb. 1.

Leases Storage Space.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—The state highway department has leased 350,000 square feet of floor space at the general army reserve depot, East Columbus, for the storage and housing of highway machinery and supplies. Most of the material which has come to Ohio as her share of the surplus war supplies of the federal government will be kept at the depot.

Physician Convicted.

Cincinnati, Jan. 19.—Dr. William Seitz, physician of Portsmouth, was found guilty by a jury in United States district court here of having violated the federal anti-narcotic act. Sentence was deferred. Dr. Seitz is charged with having dispensed morphine to alleged narcotic addicts. He maintained they were his patients.

Attorney Disbarred.

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 19.—Attorney Alexander R. Campbell, Sr., of this city was disbarred from practicing law in the courts of Ohio by ruling of Judge Will P. Stephenson, Adams county. The court found the attorney guilty of unprofessional conduct.

Skater Drowned.

Gallipolis, O., Jan. 19.—Warren Chapman, 9, was drowned in a creek at Arbuckle, near here, while skating. The ice gave way near shore. The body was recovered 30 minutes later by a 6-year-old brother.

One thousand animals are ready for Dr. Voronoff to begin his work with. He expects to undertake a series of experiments designed to make mules fertile.

MEXICAN FUSS GETS AN AIRING

Engages Attention of Coolidge and His Cabinet.

AMERICAN VESSELS HELD UP

Eight Standing Off Port of Tampico Awaiting Orders on Account of Rebel Gunboats—Possibility of Sending American Warships to Mexican Waters Touched Upon. Men of Tacoma to Be Relieved.

Washington, Jan. 19.—President Coolidge and his principal cabinet advisers are concentrating practically their entire attention on the difficult situation in Mexico.

The cabinet meeting, the longest since Mr. Coolidge took office, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of problems presented by the growing interference with American commercial and business interests resulting from the activities of the De la Huerta rebels. The possibility of sending American warships to protect American interests in Mexico, it is understood, was touched upon in the discussions.

The effectiveness of the rebel blockade at Tampico was testified to at the state department by a group of oil men, who told Secretary Hughes that eight tankers flying the American flag were standing off the port awaiting orders on account of the rebel warships.

Meanwhile the United States cruiser Richmond is speeding toward Vera Cruz, rebel headquarters, to relieve the men of the cruiser Tacoma, stranded on a reef off the harbor. There are 278 enlisted men of the Tacoma's crew quartered in and about the American consulate at Vera Cruz. Captain Stratton and 42 men, including gun crews, remain aboard the ship.

The state department as yet has received no word from Senor De la Huerta in answer to the American protest of the rebel blockade at Tampico. It is assumed that Consul Wood, at Vera Cruz, delivered the American protest to the De la Huerta headquarters. The protest stated in plain terms that the United States would resent any interference with legitimate American commerce and business interests.

Administration plans to assist President Obregon in suppressing the De la Huerta rebellion received a setback when Acting Governor Davidson declined permission for Mexican troops to pass through Texas to different points along the border. The refusal was not final, as Mr. Davidson added that, if the federal government could show an urgent need for the move and could guarantee protection to Texas citizens, the request might be considered. There is some hope in administration circles that further consideration by Governor Neff, upon his return to Texas, may change the situation. The governors of Arizona and New Mexico already have authorized the passage of the Mexican troops.

TAMPICO PORT SAFE

Federal Defenses Can Hold Off the Rebel Gunboats.

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—From cover behind five American oil tankers anchored off Tampico, two rebel gunboats continued to menace the oil port. Federal shore batteries refrained from firing on the vessels for fear of hitting the tankers.

Eight 80-millimetre guns constitute the federal defense of the entrance to Panuco river. The war office stated that these are entirely adequate to prevent the rebel gunboats entering the river and capturing the port itself.

The piratical status of the gunboats blockading Tampico will render them liable to seizure by the first warship that comes along, according to the belief prevailing here. The foreign office declaration that the gunboats are beyond the law is interpreted to mean a preliminary to seizure of the craft by port authorities. Cruisers flying the Mexican flag would have effected their capture before this if the Mexican government's request for speedy sailing had been granted, according to the official Mexican view here.

J. S. Martin, general agent in New York for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, died on board a Baltimore and Ohio railroad train en route from Chicago to New York.

Henry Ford's offer for Muskegon still stands and no new proposal will be made, it was announced at Detroit.

DONAHEY FAVORS PROBE

Would Get at Seat of Trouble in Ohio Mining Situation.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Governor Donahey in an address before the Ohio Mine Workers' convention, indicated the possibility of the appointment of a "fact-finding commission," composed of miners and mining authorities, the functions of which would be to conduct an intensive survey of the present situation of unemployment among miners, and coal production throughout the Ohio coal fields. "We want to get at the seat of this trouble," Governor Donahey declared, "and the appointment of such a commission seems a feasible procedure." He indicated it would be appointed at the wish of the miners.

The governor also told the miners that he intended to appeal to the next general assembly for the necessary legislation giving prisoners of the state's penal institutions pay for work done by them, so that the families of each might be provided for during the period of their incarceration.

Ohio For Cox, Says Baker.

Cleveland, Jan. 19.—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet, declared here that Ohio Democrats will support James M. Cox for president. A report that Mr. Baker would seek the Democratic nomination was made in a purported interview at St. Petersburg, Fla., with Milton Young, one-time secretary to Baker, when the latter was mayor of Cleveland. "I am interested in the adoption of a rational foreign policy by the United States," the former cabinet official said. "I am giving all my time to the advocacy of the entrance of the United States into the league of nations."

Rebels Driven Back.

Washington, Jan. 19.—A statement issued by the Mexican embassy forecast "complete success for the government troops operating against the Vera Cruz rebels." Revolutionary forces defending the port, it was stated, "have been driven back with heavy losses in every engagement," and the advance of the Obregon forces continues. Military operations in the oil region, according to the statement, "are being continued," and the revolt in northern Coahuila "has been stamped out."

Ships Run Blockade.

Tampico, Jan. 19.—Despite the blockade of the port of Tampico by rebel war vessels, 12 ships entered this port and four cleared without molestation. The federal land batteries at Mirimar, near the mouth of the Panuco river, engaged the fleet for an hour, without damage to either side. Federal forces repulsed a rebel attack at Juan Casiano and the latter withdrew to their base of supplies at Chinampa.

Harmon, Hotel Man, Dead.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Ben Harmon, 62, manager of the New Southern hotel and for nearly 16 years manager of the old Neil house, died suddenly of apoplexy in his office at the hotel. He was one of the best known hotel men in the state.

OPPOSITION

By CORONA REMINGTON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

JASON CARUTHERS had two jolly old blue eyes that sparkled with mirth and looked out upon life with a sort of amused sympathy, a tolerance and understanding, a kind of rule of thumb psychology based upon years of contact with human nature.

"Folks ain't actually bad," he would say, "that is, sure enough, downright bad. Just you let a man know you think he's going to skin you or lay down on the job or whatever it is, and he'll do it or bust. But you expect the best of a man and the good'll come out."

From this it can be seen that Jason Caruthers was not a great man nor a wonderful one, but sort of a homely old philosopher with a heart as big as a house and a sympathy that surpasseth understanding. Caruthers was a shining mark for those who were weary and heavy laden, and he would always send them away with fresh courage and inspiration and often with a feeling that their woes weren't so bad after all.

Came a day when Bill Fleming, the idol of the town, walked into Caruthers' little store with a dragging and a droop to his great big shoulders.

"You're a swell looking football player today," Jason greeted. "What's the matter? But I can look at your eyes and see it's a case of heart trouble."

"Sorry," he said after a pause. "I didn't mean to butt in, but I was sorry."

Bill, feeling the other's contrition and subconsciously anxious for some one to talk to, hurried to make amends.

"Glad you did, Uncle Jason, and you're right. Me and Amelia's about to split up."

"Sure enough now. Don't feel like telling me that trouble? Mebbe I could help a little."

"Getting too flighty. Running around to all these dances and going with that Watkins feller and she's bobbed her hair and the other day she had paint on her face—paint!"

"Do tell. That is pretty bad. She's a sweet little trick, Bill; I always did like her—not much bigger'n your arm. I used to watch you and her out walking Sundays and I'd think it'd be no end nice if you two was to get married some day. And so it's all off? Have you quarreled or did you just quit?"

"Quarreled. We've been fussing for two months."

"You know what I believe, son? I believe you're right. The more you talked the worse she did get. There ain't nothing wrong with Amelia but she's kinder dare-devilish and mischievous, and it's just enough for you to tell her not to do a thing to make her want to do it. She's sorter proud of her own power, and it's gone to her head a mite. Now, if I was you, I'd give her plenty o' rope and not get after her no more about nothing. You know, opposition'll make a peaceful little lamb kick and buck, and it's the same way with humans sometimes."

On the way home from the store that night Bill felt somehow strangely comforted. He would try Uncle Jason's plan, for it could do no harm.

So the next time Amelia went to a dance, instead of staying home and brooding when she refused him as an escort, he bought a new suit of clothes, put a flower in his buttonhole and appeared at the dance himself. He made it a point to introduce any men she didn't know and did all he could to help her have a good time, but he was careful not to hang around her very much himself.

Amelia was puzzled—she shook her curly head and laughed and danced and flirted, but inside a peculiar uneasiness crept into her being. Bill had never treated her that way before—what could he mean? He was as pleasant as ever, yet so different; somehow far away and impersonal. What could he mean? When he called the following evening she would ask him.

But he didn't call—nor the next evening, nor the next, nor the next, and it was a week before she saw him again. One whole week of absolute torture. Amelia refused to eat, she couldn't sleep, her cheeks were pale, the neglected bobbed hair hung in forlorn little strings about her face. All the jauntiness gone—a most pathetic little girl with a breaking heart.

When Bill saw her his own heart jumped with sympathy and triumph, but he was master still of himself. He stood in the doorway and held out his arms.

"If you've had enough," he said, surprised at his own coolness, "you may come here."

Somehow she stumbled across the room and into his arms.

"What made you do it?" he asked at last.

"I—I don't know, but when I found out you didn't care whether I did it or not, somehow I just didn't want to do it any more."

And Bill Fleming smiled as he thought of Uncle Jason's lamb and the opposition.

Orchard Intercropping Secondard Proposition

From the year that an orchard is first set out, intercropping is a secondary proposition and should be treated as such—the trees come first. It has usually been considered desirable to make use of the land between the trees for the first few years from the standpoint of increased profit. Furthermore, a cultivated crop insures cultivation of the trees.

To Adjust Screws in Wood or Plaster.

If you dip a screw into oil before applying the screw driver to send it into wood, you will find that the screw will go in without the usual difficulty. When preparing to put a screw into plaster, first make a hole in the plaster larger than the screw. Fill the hole with a paste made of plaster of paris mixed with alum water. Put in the screw, then allow it to get hard, and the screw will be very firmly lodged in the plaster.

Savage Mother Owl.
As she was hanging out clothes a farmer's wife, near Muncie, Ind., was savagely attacked by a big brown owl. Flying from a neighboring tree, the bird pecked the woman's head and eye and pulled out several shreds of hair. The injury to the eye necessitated an operation. It was found afterward that the owl had a nest of young birds close by.

Orchard Freak.
A curious horticultural freak is to be seen in a garden at Templeton, Pembrokeshire, where an apple tree has a black-currant bush growing out of the trunk. One of the branches of the apple tree was broken, and apparently a currant seed found its way into the socket. Both tree and bush are flourishing.

WHAT POSY PETALS TELL
"Every Daisy in the Dell Knows the Secret, Knows It Well."

Probably most people have, at some period of their lives, plucked a daisy and, thinking of one of the opposite sex, picked the petals of the flower one by one, saying at the same time, "He loves me; he loves me not."

If the last petal picked coincides with "he loves me," all is well. If with "he loves me not," all is wrong. There are several modifications of this superstition of daisy picking, but it seems to owe its origin to the Scandinavians, observes London Tit-Bits. The very name of the flower chosen for this incantation is significant of the origin of the superstition—day's eye, Anglo-Saxon, daiges eage—that is the sun; and looking at the daisy the reason of its being so named is apparent.

Freyja, the goddess of love in the old Scandinavian mythologies, and whose cult spread over northern Germany, had her home in the sun—and she thus became associated in the minds of her worshippers with the daisy—the flower sun. Therefore it was most fitting to consult the daisy upon matters of love.

The altars of Freyja have long crumbled to dust, but young men and maidens still consult her symbolic flower to read the hearts of their loved ones, believing, in the words of the popular song, that "Every daisy in the dell knows the secret, knows it well."

Milkweed Seeds.
The milkweed seeds are concealed in a pod, which breaks open and exposes them to the wind. Up they go through the air, each seed carried by a ball of silky down. The threads so frail that you are astonished when you examine them with a microscope. Each thread turns out to be a separate tube ribbed with dark vein-like streaks arranged in an irregular manner. When a milkweed pod bursts open, you can imagine yourself at a miniature aero meet, in which scores of white craft soar up into the morning wind.

TREE INJURY CAUSES

FORMATION OF GUM.

The formation of gum in the bark of a cherry, peach, or plum tree is not a disease, but rather a symptom that something is wrong with the tree. This gum formation, or gumosis as it is called, is brought about by a partial dissolving of the cell walls of the bark and wood and may follow an injury or unfavorable condition. Mechanical injuries or wounds of any kind, the attacks of insects or diseases and injury to the tissues by frost are likely to give rise to gumosis.

The treatment, as suggested by botanists of the Ohio Experiment Station, will depend upon the cause. If due to disease or insects, proper measures for their control, including a suitable spraying schedule, are recommended. Mechanical injuries and wounds may be trimmed smooth and protected by a coat of pure paint gas tar, or water glass. If due to freezing, the dead branches are pruned out. In all cases of gumosis conditions favoring the health of the tree will aid materially in the recovery.

Cause of Franc's Fall.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The fall of the French franc is alleged to have been brought about mainly through a Wall street offensive against the French money, directed by J. P. Morgan. Early last year Morgan is said to have bought extensively of French bonds and stocks and all sorts of obligations. It was taken then as an effort by Morgan to participate in French industry. It is now stated that all of these obligations were thrown on the market in one day, causing the collapse of the franc, which had already been weakened by the stand of the French government. It is suspected that British capital is participating in the offensive.

The Art of Not Hearing.

The art of not hearing should be learnt by all. It is fully as important to domestic happiness as a cultivated ear, for which both money and time are expended. There are so many things which it is painful to hear, so many which we ought not to hear, so very many which, if heard, will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness, that everyone should be educated to take in or shut out sounds according to his or her pleasure.—Exchange.

STRICKEN.

Edward Himrod, of Wauchula, Florida, formerly of this city, suffered a stroke of paralysis last Saturday evening which effected his right side.

Mrs. Lulu Ross is in receipt of a letter from the daughter of James P. Antill, dated New Samaria, Florida, in which she stated that her father suffered a stroke of paralysis Christmas and was unconscious for three hours, but has since rallied and his condition is improving.

Sir Isaac Pitman.

Pitman, the inventor of modern shorthand writing, was a worker. At sixty-five he was in his office at 6 a. m. summer and winter. Till he was fifty he never took a holiday or wanted one. For 20 years he worked 14 hours at his desk, from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., with 2 hours off for meals. At forty-five he began to knock off at 6 p. m. He lived to be eighty-four. At twenty-five dyspepsia nearly killed him, but he got over it by giving up meat and wine. He worked incessantly at his system of shorthand, giving it popularity by his complete reports of lectures by prominent scientists in Manchester, England. His successor, Benjamin Pitman, improved upon his plan. But shorthand was well known among the ancients, some of the old Roman Orations, those of Cicero having been preserved for us that way, in all probability.

Danced Themselves Into Frenzy.

There is nothing new about the endurance dance. In 1734, when peasant and noble for leagues about gathered at the festival of St. John, at Aix-la-Chapelle, a fellow in motley danced over the cobbles. Presently he was joined by a beggar, so that the two gyrated companionably and leaped and pranked. Then a stout burgher hurled his bulk into the revel. A conflagration of dancing, without apparent reason, was kindled, and before the sun declined the streets were thronged with prancing thousands. Indeed, so runs the chronicle, they "commenced dancing in a wild and frantic manner, many losing entire control over themselves, and continuing to dance until dropping down from fatigue, and some, in a moment of frenzy, dashing out their brains against walls."

Foxy Birds.

Many birds have the trick of tumbling along on the ground in front of sportsmen in order to draw them away from their nests.

SOME OF LIFE'S COMEDIES

Picked at Random From Recorded Doings of the Very Newly Married.

Here's to the very newly married. It was winter and the young husband complained bitterly of a "beastly" pain in his back; lumbago, pleurisy; "Heaven knows what!" he gloomed to his terrified spouse. And talked largely of more life insurance. Terrified into action she recalled her mother's remedy for such mysterious aches and pains, says a New York Sun and Globe writer.

A boiling hot bath and—wasn't it borax? On this fateful morning she therefore drew the bath, arranged the towels and seeking in the kitchenette—equipped for her while on her recent wedding trip by her feminine relatives—she discovered the borax in a large bag. Uncertain of the quantity, she flung the contents into the tub and ordered her husband to soak. He did, from crown to toe.

After which there were scenes. The borax was starch.

And then there was the bride who on a cruise with her groom in a forty-four sailing sloop, in the midst of a really terrific storm when the crewless captain and owner was struggling with sheets and centerboard, called loudly from the cabin, "We shall capsize!" He groaned but fled to her rescue, and found her sitting peacefully on a rocking camp stool. She smiled sweetly when he entered.

And about the bride whose husband demanded sausage meat—the kind one fries, you know, the back home sort, served in little sizzling cakes? How about her when she went to her butcher and, learning that no sausage meat was to be had at the moment, bought with gravity and hard earned lard a dozen or so small fat sausages and ordered the patient butcher to strip off the skins and dig forth the succulent innards. How about her? How about them all, bless them?

Exporting Worm Holes.

That it pays to investigate needs of foreign markets is shown by the following incident which occurred in a foreign country a short time ago, recently reported to the lumber division of the Department of Commerce.

An American exporter sent an unusually poor consignment of oak, which was found to be wormy, to his overseas connection, but no market could be found for this parcel. This consignment would have caused a great loss to the exporter were it not for the fact that the consignee happened to visit an antique furniture factory. The manufacturer was at that time busily engaged in making antique grandfather's clocks and found the oak in question to answer his purpose very nicely because it eliminated the work of boring worm holes by hand. The parcel was disposed of at a premium and a profitable connection was established.

Force, Not Elegance.

During the war an enlisted man who had done well in our service was commissioned as a second lieutenant. He knew his drill and his duties perfectly, but owing to his lack of education the words that he used in his reports were sometimes puzzling.

During the fighting around Chateau-Thierry he found that he and his platoon were far in advance of the rest of the line and in a very tight place; there was little hope of their getting out unless help came quickly. He had already lost a good many men. Calling his runner to his side, he gave him this message to deliver to the colonel: "Beat it to the old man, kid, as fast as your legs'll carry you and tell him, with my respects, to hustle up reinforcements, as me and the whole platoon are all decomposed!"

In spite of the choice of words the reinforcements arrived in time.—Youth's Companion.

Couldn't Fool Him.

Vesuvius always has a plume of smoke waving over it. This caught the eye of one visitor to Naples to the exclusion of all else.

For days he viewed it from his hotel window with a telescope.

Proceeding then to make the acquaintance of some city officials, he asked the name of the mountain. They told him it was Vesuvius.

"Well," he stated, "I'm a revenue officer at home, and I'll just give your police a little tip. I been watching that hill a week now. I've had experience in such matters. They can't fool me. Somebody is running a still."

To Be Restored to Fertility.

The plain of Gennesaret, the garden of the Lord, over which Josephus became dithyrambic, which in his day had a soil so fruitful that all sorts of trees and fruit grew in it, lies waste save for a Jewish colony that is banking up the soil in a corner and preparing a nursery for trees. The grapes and figs have given place to a jungle of weeds! For the shadow of the Turk has blighted all the land. But it will yet be a garden of the Lord once more.—Dr. Norman Maclean.

The Old Barns.

A reporter has been visiting back yards to find out what has been done with the old barns, monuments to the age of the horse-drawn vehicle. He found that many of them have been converted into garages, the lofts empty except for cobwebs. Others are used for storage places. A few have been converted into playhouses for children—mostly by the children.—Columbia Missourian.

PUBLISHES LEAFLET ON FOREST PLANTING

Edmund Secrest, state forester, says the best time to plant most kinds of forest trees is in early spring just as soon as the frost is out of the ground and the soil is dry enough, altho both hardwood trees and deciduous conifers may be planted anytime during the dormant season when the soil is in good condition.

Evergreen trees, he says, should be planted in the spring and if planted early they get a better start and a larger percent will live. The earlier the planting is done the better it will be for the trees.

In a leaflet on planting, Mr. Secrest also discusses the planting site, the spacing and best methods of planting the different species and the care of young trees before and after planting. This leaflet is published by the Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio, and will be sent free upon request.

CRAPSHOOTERS

Fifteen boys were placed under arrest at Darbyville Thursday evening on the charge of playing barn yard golf. They appeared before Justice Strawser Friday and put up $7.50 each for their appearance next Monday. Just a few days ago nine young men were arrested in the same village for shooting craps and were found guilty and anted up a fine. Some one over in that placid village is determined to clean up that proslac burg and is keeping Sheriff Young and Deputy Howard Irwin busy running over there to keep the peace.

GIVE NEW LIFE TO PINS

Company Formed in New York for the Purpose of Cleaning and Refinishing Them.

That time-worn and still unanswered question, "What becomes of all the old pins?" seems to be in a fair way of being answered in New York city at least, for a company has been formed for the purpose of refinishing used pins and restoring them to their original newness. Not that representatives of the company are to patrol the streets gathering up discarded pins, but it is said that in some of the large dressmaking establishments the pin bill sometimes reaches as high as $1,500 annually. Used only once, the pins are removed and allowed to drop on the floor, where they are swept away. Even if gathered up at the close of the day, the pins are too dirty to be used again on fine fabrics. The company mentioned purposes to effect a saving in the pin item by taking all the used pins, cleaning and refinishing them.

More than a year of experimentation was necessary in order to discover a process for satisfactorily refinishing the pins. At first it was thought that if the pins simply were gathered by means of a magnet instead of sweeping, they could be used again without refinishing, but even then it was found that the pins retained enough of the floor dust to soil white fabrics and make their use unprofitable. A process was finally discovered, however, whereby the refinished pins can be returned to the users at half the cost of the new product and still the refinishing company will be enabled to make a fair working profit.

Life Saved by Pup.

Only a common hound, but he fought a maddened bull to save his eight-year-old master's life and won. The boy was resting under a tree in a field near Sunbury, Pa., when the infuriated bull saw him. The animal charged and tossed him high into the air. One horn sank into the child's arm. The boy screamed with pain as the animal dragged him across the field, but no one heard except the little dog. The pup was game, but cautious, too, and opened his attack from the rear. He sank his teeth into the bull's hind leg and hung on despite violent kicks. The bull released the little lad to deal with the new annoyance and the hound let go. That was his strategy. Snapping and snarling, he backed away from the charging bull, dodging and leading the animal away from the boy. The little victim crawled away under the fence and the pup at once gave up the fight. With a final snarl, he dashed away after his master, wagging his tail proudly.

Nazareth Becoming Modern.

A garage at Nazareth rather jars on the susceptibilities of Christian people who have a great reverence for the little Palestinian village where Christ spent his boyhood days. Such, however, is the case, rendered necessary by the increasing tide of automobile traffic. The new repair shop is in charge of Arabs, Syrians, or Jews who learned the trade in the United States. Even in Nazareth, which in other respects is little different in its seclusion and repose from that day twenty centuries ago when the Savior sent forth the message of brotherhood and equality which transformed the world, there are modern garages and machine shops. They make a striking contrast with the poor homes of the natives, and are within a short distance of the site of the abode which once was the carpenter shop of the Master of Men.

Aero Newspaper.

The airplanes carrying mail and passengers between London and Paris now actually have a printing outfit on board them and publish a newspaper on the voyage. Each day before the sailing hour the latest news of the world, political, financial and general, is rushed to the editor. During the flight news is sent out by wireless from London and Paris at regular intervals, so that the aerial editor is in instant touch with affairs. The news is prepared, set up, and the paper printed during the aeroplane's flight. The editions are delivered to the towns over which the airplane flies by means of parachutes. The aerial newspaper contains stock quotations, special features and news in general.

Wanted Information.

Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, is serious-minded. He seldom tells a story. His pet one is this: "Several years ago one of the committees of which I was a member had under consideration Indian heirship cases. Particulars about them were stated clearly and fully in the book of estimates and all that we had to do was to follow that item by item. One senator, who must have been wool gathering, spoke up: 'Mr. Chairman, I wish you would explain to me what in the world Indians have to do with airplanes.'"

One Sunday.

It was in Indianapolis. A Sunday school teacher asked a little boy his name. Before he had time to answer another little boy said, "His name is John Clark."

Another boy, "Nope, it's John Fox."

Still another, "It isn't either. He's John Anderson."

"Sh," said the teacher, and when quiet reigned, she asked the little boy to tell his name.

He replied, "John Anderson."

Immediately this exclamation came from a little boy in the back of the room: "Goah! Is she married again?"

AMUSEMENTS

If you plan to send your boy to boarding school, it might be well for you to first see "Boys to Board" the latest of the series of Pathe's "Our Gang" comedies, which will be shown Monday at the Met theater. The entire aggregation of Hal Roach's "Rascals" are seen behaving their worst, including Mickey Daniels, "Sunshine Sammy," Jackie Davis, "Little Farina," Jackie Condon, "Fatty" Joe Cobb and Mary Kornman. A number of grownups also help along the comedy moments.

Boarding schools are hardly appropriate places for youngsters to get their early moulding if all have to endure what these kiddies go thru in their latest endeavor. No comedy turned out by the Hal Roach forces in a year contains more laughs than this two-reel mirth maker. In the parlance of the screen it "has everything."

"Boys to Board" tells the simple story of the down trodden husband whose wife conducts a school for boys. The meek little man never has fulfilled his youthful desires of hunting Indians, so when the youngsters in the school decide they have been treated rough enough and plan to escape he determines to accompany them.

Their midnight escape—presenting a few real thrills—leads them into a bootlegger's den, and things happen so fast that it is difficult for the audience to keep up with the constant stream of laughable moments and hilarious situations. The night scenes are especially humorous and make the offering one of the funniest contributions to this series of comedies. Tom McNamara is responsible for the direction.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT.

Washington is the slowest spot in the country to react to the sentiment of the voters. Any country editor can see which way the wind is blowing weeks before his senator knows even that there is a wind. But why should Republican leaders supposedly cooperating with a Republican president and a successful election be so hasty and eager in throwing up the sponge? Everybody outside the capital knows that the bonus is slipping, that tax reduction, honest Mellon tax reduction is gaining. The chances are strong that with half a will on the part of Republican senators and representatives the program in all its essentials as President Coolidge has rightly insisted, will be enacted.

So why not fight a little—or at least maintain a discreet silence—instead of surrendering every weekend? Mr. Mellon and Mr. Coolidge can do and are doing the rest. More support of the Longworth brand would be cordially appreciated by Republican voters.—New York Tribune.

HULL PLEASED

Holds New York Ideal City For Democratic Convention.

New York, Jan. 19.—Chairman Cordell Hull headed a subcommittee of 14 of the Democratic national committee which came to this city to complete arrangements for the Democratic national convention here in June.

Hull expressed his delight that New York city won the honor of entertaining the convention and said he was very much pleased at preparations made by Chairman Joseph P. Day and his convention committee to care for the 1,100 delegates and hundreds of thousands of visitors due here before June 24. "I have been told," Hull said, "but now I am convinced, that New York is the ideal city for the greatest Democratic national convention ever held. We are simply delighted with the hospitality with which we have been received, and the splendid facilities offered us."

RATE BOOST SUSPENDED

State Utilities Company to Probe Phone Proposal.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Increased long distance telephone toll charges proposed by the Ohio Bell Telephone company, to be effective Jan. 21 throughout Ohio, were suspended by the public utilities commission.

The suspension resulted from protests filed with the commission against the new schedule and is for 120 days, during which time the proposed rates will be investigated by the commission and a hearing conducted to determine whether they are justified. The increase asked by the telephone company is 5 cents on each call over 30 miles and, under 104 miles. The utilities commission experts estimate the increase would add $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year to the company's revenues. Company officials say it would amount to $400,000 a year.

The Nursery.

Bright colors, plenty of light, clean windows, an abundance of good colored prints and toys without number are the proper furnishings for a nursery. Nursery! Why, the very name tells you what it ought to be—the home of childhood—the most important room in the house—a room that will greatly tend to stamp the character of your child for the remainder of his life.

"Shun-Pikes."

Not all dictionaries contain the word "shun-pike," but it was in common use in this country a century ago and throws an amusing light on the character of some of our thrifty ancestors. A "shun-pike" was a short byroad that left a turnpike on one side of a tollgate and joined it again on the other.—Youth's Companion.

WOULD MAKE FARMER LOAN DEPEND ON PRACTICE OF CROP DIVERSITY

Farmers and Bankers Are Economic Team Mates, but Obligation Rests on Farmer to Protect Soil and Balance Crops, Says D. H. Otis.

By D. H. OTIS

Director, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

THE banker may properly be considered the team mate of the farmer, and as such must work in perfect harmony. Economic conditions demand it. The work is too heavy. It requires a team. The interdependence of the farmer and banker is so close that self-preservation demands that they pull together. If agriculture fails we all fail. There are no two industries that offer greater opportunities for mutual helpfulness, for increasing profits and bank deposits than do banking and farming.

D. H. Otis

The Banker-Farmer movement presents a program that reaches down through the surface to the very roots of things. It recognizes the truth that bank prosperity depends not upon the prosperity of a few but upon the prosperity of all and especially of the average man and the average woman. In the last analysis we must recognize a community of interest, "each for all and all for each."

Periods of low farmer purchasing power are invariably followed by a decided increase in the number of business failures. When the income per acre is increased from one to two dollars there is a direct effect in decreasing the number of business failures and, vice versa, with a decrease of one to two dollars in the income per acre, business failures mount steadily upward.

City Bankers and Country Conditions

Bankers, if anybody, are affected more quickly and more directly than other business men. A period of agricultural depression is immediately noticeable in the balances that the country bank carries with its city correspondent. City banks are beginning to recognize this. Many of them are taking an active interest in the Banker-Farmer movement.

There are some fundamentals in farming with which all business men should be familiar. A bank would not long succeed if it should continue to use its capital stock for running expenses. Neither will the farm. Farmers have been living not upon the interest from their investments but upon their principal. Almost every effort by American farmers has resulted in decreasing the fertility of the soil. The banker who drives into the country and observes this process of mining the fertility from the land should feel that to that extent the resources of his bank are being sapped.

Yet some of our bankers are continuing to loan money to the one-crop farmer. When such a farmer comes around for a loan the banker should make the loan on the condition that he keep at least one cow, one sow and a couple of dozen hens, at least enough livestock to feed his own family. Agriculture is sick, production is unbalanced. Farmers are paying freight and other overhead charges on food products they ought to be raising at home.

Less Time for Agitators

More diversified farming may mean less automobile riding; it ought to. Our economic problems cannot be solved unless we are willing to work. The one-crop farmer is not performing his share of work. He needs profitable employment throughout the year. Lolling on the farm ought to be made unpopular. Business men work throughout the year. Why shouldn't the farmer? If he did, there would be less time to listen to the agitator. The latter only increases discontent, makes men less capable and prolongs the time of recovery. The farmer must work his way out and not look in vain for the Government to legislate high prices.

But if we get our farmers to working full time will we not have over-production? This over-production cry blinds us to the real issue. There may be times when certain crops, because of climatic or economic conditions, are unprofitable and yet there are other crops that are profitable in a well worked out system of diversification. In the livestock sections we seldom hear of an over-production of alfalfa or clover. In all sections of the country we are importing either food or feed that we ought to be raising at home. Our cropping systems need to be readjusted to meet present needs. We need to do just a little more constructive thinking.

Preparedness.

When the iceman came out of the house he found a small boy sitting on one of his blocks.

"Ere," he roared, "what are yer a-sitting on that for? Git off of it." The boy raised a tear-stained face. "Was you ever a boy?" he inquired faintly.

"Of course I was," said the iceman, fuming. "But—" "And did you never play truant?" put in the youngster.

"Of course I did," said the iceman. "Now then, you—"

"An' when you got home did your father take a stick an'—"

"Sit where you are, my little man," said the iceman. "I understand."

Curing a Bad Habit.

Very frequently dogs will get into the habit of sucking eggs, and once this is started it is usually hard to break. With some dogs a sound whipping or giving them a hot egg will effect the cure. But with others a more severe lesson is necessary. The most effectual remedy is to draw from an egg some of the contents through a hole drilled at one of the ends. Then insert in this aperture a quantity of red pepper, placing the egg in such a place that the dog is sure to find it. After one or two experiences the dog will soon give the eggs a wide berth.—Sportsman's Digest.

Legume Is Satisfactory

Crop for Poultry Flock

One of the most satisfactory crops to grow on the ground where poultry ranges is the legume. Clover or alfalfa are ideal crops for this purpose. A half acre of ground seeded to either one of these legumes will furnish enough green feed for a hundred or more chickens.

Deep Corn Cultivation

Will Cut Many of Roots

When the stalks of corn are 18 inches high, the roots have met across a three-and-one-half-foot row. Deep cultivation at this time will cut many of the roots and check the growth of the plants. A good rule to follow is to cultivate deep early in the season and shallow later when the plants are larger.

American Indian a Mystery.

The origin of the American Indian is a matter of dispute. Ethnologically, the Indian resembles most closely certain Mongolian and Siberian peoples. It is, therefore, believed by most authorities that his ancestors crossed from Asia to Alaska and thence down the coast of North America.

It's well we should feel that life's reckoning we can't make twice over; there's no real making amends in the world, any more nor you can mend wrong subtraction by doing your addition right.—George Elliot.

THE COMMON ENEMY

WHY BANKS?

LESSON III

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman.

Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Banks are defined as "institutions chartered to receive deposits and make loans." What is a bank deposit? What is a bank loan?

BANK DEPOSIT = money or checks left with a bank to be kept safe from thieves, fire or other loss; to earn interest, if in a savings account; to be convenient for the future use of the depositor; to be loaned out to earn the expenses of the bank's services, and interest for the depositor when in an interest bearing account.

BANK LOAN = advance of money to help business enterprise so that business may again help the earner and saver by giving employment.

J. H. Puelicher

In the Middle Ages safes were very few. Goldsmiths kept their jewelry in strong boxes, and also accepted for safekeeping, for a fee, money packed and marked with the owner's name. In those days money saved lay idle, for it is put to work by banks for the benefit of the depositor and the community.

Patience.

A phlegmatic insensibility is as different from patience, as a pool from a harbor. Into the one, indolence naturally sinks us; but if we arrive at the other it is by encountering many an adverse wind and rough wave, with a more skilful pilot at the helm than self, and a company under better command than the passions.—Dilwyn.

Ear Tag System Is Practical for Flocks

Especially Used for Identifying Each Individual.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An ingenious and simple method of marking farm breeding animals has been used successfully with sheep for eight years by Cooper Curtice of the United States Department of Agriculture at the farm of the bureau of animal industry near Vienna, Va. The system is especially adapted for identifying quickly the extent of pure blood of individuals in herds and flocks being improved with purebred sires. Each animal is labeled with an aluminum tag bearing a number. Females are labeled on the right ear; males on the left. The young are given the dam's number preceded by 1 (or by 10 if the dam's number is a digital number) if it is the first young born; preceded by 2 if the second born, and so on.

This system is quite practical for farm flocks of sheep of less than 100 head, and for cattle. If a purebred sire is being used to grade up a herd or flock of nondescript females, the system affords a very good ever-present record of the grade of animals obtained. For example: The first-born young of female No. 25 will be marked 125. Animal No. 125 is one-half grade. The young of 125 will be marked 1125, and will be a three-quarters grade. No. 11125 will be seven-eighths, and No. 111125, fifteen-sixteenths. To illustrate further: No. 3125 is the third young of the first young of 25 and a three-quarters grade.

When there is no longer space for additional figures on the label, the sixth or seventh generation may be marked with letters following the number of the original dam. Applied to female No. 25, the young of the sixth generation may be marked 25A; next generation, 25B, and so on. If desired, the sire number may be placed on the reverse side of the label.

This method of identifying animals may be used in conjunction with an ear-notching system, which further identifies them. A good ear-notching plan enables the owner to replace, with assurance as to correct identity, any ear tags that may be lost.

Eradicate Weed Plants by Preventing Growth

There is only one way to eradicate noxious perennial plants such as wild morning glories or pea vine growths, or whatever kind they may be; and that is to prevent them from making any leaf growth during the last half of summer, or after about July 1. Whatever method you find most convenient for doing this will be the most practical method for you to apply.

Some such plants can be eradicated by pasturing the last half of summer; other methods are to keep the land cultivated the last half of summer, or to keep them cut down with a hoe when in some cultivated crop, such as corn; another method is to smother with straw or by growing some rank growing crop; another is to keep the land mowed close to the ground frequently.

Lack of Cleanliness Is Cause of Calf Disorders

Nearly all disorders or diseases of calves, says the United States Department of Agriculture, are caused either directly or indirectly by lack of cleanliness. Filth, whether it is in feed, pens, bedding, or pails and utensils, is dangerous to the health of the calf. To be on the safe side use nothing but clean milk (sweet or sour), scald the pails or sterilize them with steam, remove old feed from the boxes and clean them daily. Filth and dirt are the natural breeding places of many bacteria that will cause disturbances in the young animal's stomach. Freedom from filth usually means freedom from disease.

Best to Dehorn Calves When but Few Days Old

Dehorning young calves is best done when the calf is a few days old. Clip the hair with a pair of shears where the horn will appear. Rub the button with caustic potash until the dead layer of the skin comes off and it is about ready to bleed. The end of the stick of caustic potash that you apply to the horn should first be moistened and the stick held with a cloth so as not to burn the hand.

If for any reason the operation has been delayed for several weeks the button can be cut off with a sharp knife and the caustic potash applied to kill it. This will kill the horn, but it is better to do it before the calf is a few weeks old.

Pigs Are Benefited by Allowance of Charcoal

Pigs are always benefited by having frequent access to charcoal. The following method of preparing charcoal is very satisfactory: A mass of cobs are raked together and set on fire. When the cobs are burning briskly oats are poured over the fire until it is all but smothered. In a short time the oats will be well blackened. The fire should then be put out by scattering the burning cobs. The cobs may continue burning but the fire in the oats will quickly die out. When cold the pigs should be allowed free access to the burned oats. They will greedily search out every particle.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"What's his religion?" asked the House Detective, looking after the man with his collar buttoned behind. "I did not ask him Kelly," snapped the girl. "I not only did not ask him I didn't care. All I care about is, has anybody got any, not what brand it is. "Trying to pick out the brand of religion some other fellow has is as useless as judging a woman by the color of her hair. The important thing to investigate is whether she has it. "I am a good American, but I cannot subscribe to some of the policies of the Puritan ancestors, who took a boat and came to the wilderness, where they could worship in their own way and make everybody else do the same thing.

"We are all headed for heaven. That we take different routes does not matter, so long as we get there. The people who erect the toll gates on the various roads are anxious to have their roads used, and each says that you will never get to the destination over any other road than his, but with a place as popular as heaven, a place that everybody is headed for, you can't tell me that there is only one road leading there. Some roads are rough and poor, some are good roads, but the point is there are some roads everywhere.

"I go my road and pay my toll, but do not fight anybody going another route. Kelly, I am certain I am going to heaven. I am certain I am going to enjoy it, even if I do not play a harp. But the biggest fun I expect to have, when I get there, is watching a lot of Jews, Catholics, Presbyterians, Christian Scientists, Methodists, Holy Rollers, Seventh Day Adventists and Buddhists. Each of 'em will acquire a chronic look of surprise, meeting the others. I know I won't be able to keep my eye on my music while I take my harp lessons, watching their faces."

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS.

In computing his net income for the year, 1933, a taxpayer may deduct from gross income all losses, incurred not only in his business, trade or profession, but in any "transaction entered into for profit" not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

To be allowed, losses not incurred in trade or business must conform closely to the wording of the statute. For example, a loss incurred in the sale of a taxpayer's home, which at the time of purchase was bought without intention of resale is not deductible because it was not a transaction entered into for profit.

Losses sustained in the operation of a farm as a business venture are deductible. If sustained in the operation of a farm operated merely for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer, such losses are not deductible.

OIL LAND LEASES MAY BE REVOKED

Congress Almost Certain to Take Early Action.

WALSH TO REPORT MONDAY

President Coolidge Watching Closely All Developments in the Investigation, but Will Take No Action Until the Senate Has Completed Its Inquiry and Congress Has Acted. Caraway's Charges Denied.

Washington, Jan. 19.—As a result of revelations made in the senate committee's investigation into the transfer of government oil reserve lands to private ownership, it became practically certain that congress will demand revocation of leases in the Teapot Dome and other sections.

This action will take the form of a joint resolution calling on President Coolidge to set aside these leases. The president is watching closely all developments in the investigation, but will take no action until the senate has completed its inquiry and congress has acted.

Senators who are following every move in the investigation say that it promises to disclose one of the worst scandals in the official life of Washington.

Action by the president could be in the form of an executive order canceling the oil leases, or an instruction to the attorney general to prosecute, or both.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, a member of the public lands committee, to which the senate confided the investigation, will report to the committee next Monday. He will submit the results of his trip to Palm Beach, Fla., where, by authority of the committee, he questioned Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, regarding Mr. McLean's alleged (and denied) loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who executed the leases. This transfer placed the Teapot Dome and other exceedingly valuable oil properties in the hands of Secretary Fall.

The charges made by Senator Caraway in his speech in the senate last Wednesday, in which he declared that the leasing of Teapot Dome by Secretary Fall was a "gigantic conspiracy," have brought a flood of letters to senators and representatives which show that the whole country is aroused over the matter.

Senator Caraway's charges have been denied by former Secretary Fall in a statement issued in New Orleans, in which he declares he received no compensation from the Sinclair oil interests in connection with the Teapot Dome lease. This denial was read with considerable interest by senators who have been following the investigation. It probably will lead to more debate in the senate by Caraway and others.

The chief point in controversy revolves about the $100,000 which Secretary Fall admits he received several months after the Teapot Dome lease was executed, the money being used by him in the purchase of another ranch in New Mexico. Fall, in a letter to the investigating committee, declared he got this money from Edward B. McLean, and the committee subsequently received a communication from McLean's lawyers admitting this was so.

BOK TO TESTIFY

Notifies Senate Committee He Will Appear Next Monday.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Edward M. Bok, promoter of the $100,000 Bok peace plan award, notified the selected committee of the senate named to investigate league of nations and other propaganda that he will appear before the committee Monday.

Miss Esther Everett Lape, the other witness thus far called, also is expected to appear. Bok had planned to leave his Philadelphia home Sunday night for a winter sojourn in Florida. He will stop here en route south.

From Bok and Miss Lape the committee, headed by Senator Moses, expects to obtain a long list of witnesses to summon in addition to members of the jury of award and the policy committee supervising the Bok contest and the referendum. Miss Lape, as member in charge of the policy committee, is understood to possess more detailed knowledge of the whole matter than any other one person, unless it be Bok himself.

RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA

Race On Between Great Britain France and Italy.

Moscow, Jan. 19.—According to soviet officials, a race for early recognition of soviet Russia is now going on between Britain, Italy and France. Recognition by Italy, it is declared, is expected any day. Italy and Russia mutually renouncing all financial claims. France is said to be endeavoring to anticipate recognition of Russia by the British Labor cabinet, which is expected to take office next week. The French fear that a British and Russian understanding with Italy's support, would enable a revision of the Versailles treaty, and that it might also cause the formation of a bloc consisting of Britain, Germany, Italy and Russia against France and the little entente. It is reported that President Millerand of France is now in favor of a speedy understanding with Russia.

Shows Mastery in All but Three of Fifteen Rounds.

New York, Jan. 19.—Harry Greb and Johnny Wilson fought 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden last night, the former winning the decision.

"The Pittsburgh windmill," who won his title from Wilson at the Polo grounds last summer, had no difficulty defending it against Wilson. He won, in the language of the game, as far as you can shoot a rifle. He slapped and mauled and otherwise mistreated John Panica Wilson in all but about three of 15 rounds, and a lot of the fellows who paid $50 and $37 to see the fight, had gone expecting to see John Panica win, at that.

Greb reduced from the 175 pounds at which he fought Gene Tunney about a month ago, to 158½ pounds for this fight. He will pay in future years for this reduction a very heavy price. He was as fast as ever, however, thrashing around Wilson all night, speeding around Wilson all night, when she broke from her mooring mast and rode out a 70-mile gale in badly damaged condition, was begun by the house naval affairs committee today. The committee's inquiry is directed particularly with the view of determining the wisdom and value of the proposed flight of the Shenandoah to the North pole next spring and the ability of the glider craft successfully to negotiate the unprecedented voyage.

Secretary of the Navy Denby, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department, who has been designated by the department, will appear before the committee to give the members the benefit of their knowledge and opinion. The carrying out of plans for the polar flight may depend upon the results of the committee's inquiry and findings. There has developed some opposition to the expedition, on the ground that it unnecessarily jeopardizes the lives of the crew.

GIRL FILES SUIT FOR A MILLION

Cites Mother in Affidavit as One of Defendants.

TELLS STORY OF ALLEGED PLOT

Plaintiff Claims She Was Drugged With Morphine and Held a Prisoner For Months—Impelling Motive, Girl Alleges, Was an Effort to Force Her Into Silence—Mother Denies Accusations.

New York, Jan. 19.—Miss Helen J. French, a dashing brunette of 23, told an amazing story of an alleged plot in which she says she was drugged with morphine and held a prisoner for months. Her story became public when she began suit for $1,000,000 damages.

Her story is all the more astounding because one of the defendants is her mother, whom she designates in the suit as both Helen F. Darling and Mrs. William W. Stevenson. Other defendants are William W. Stevenson, comptroller of the Mutual Life Assurance company, and Dr. Joseph Henry Cahoon.

The impelling motive for the alleged conspiracy, Miss French says, was an effort to force her into silence as to an alleged intrigue which she says has existed between her mother and Stevenson.

"The mother declared: 'I will not discuss such nonsense.' Both Stevenson and Dr. Cahoon denied the charges.

Miss French, who is said to be heirless to a substantial sum, says in her affidavit:

"When I came to live with my mother, about a year ago, after a long absence, during which I toured the world, I found Dr. Cahoon was a daily and nightly visitor, coming in the evening, morning and sometimes during the night. They tried to get me to become a drug addict—both Dr. Cahoon and mother, as well as Mr. Stevenson, which I naturally refused.

"Because I remonstrated with them that it was an outrageous piece of work and that I would inform the authorities, I was kept a prisoner at home for months at a time. When least expected an injection of morphine would be given me by Dr. Cahoon. I became virtually out of my mind from the treatment.

"Last April I was given such an injection and the next thing I knew I was in a sanitarium, having been taken there in Mr. Stevenson's car. I was kept there two months, all liberties denied, and all bills paid by Mr. Stevenson. When I came out conditions continued as before. It seems that the three were afraid I would get away and show them up—show the lives they had been living and how they had treated me."

She goes on to tell how she was confined in a second sanitarium in New Jersey, from which she fled in the night by making a rope with the sheets on her bed and sliding from the second story window. She made her way to New York and to the home of friends, to whom she told her story and retained an attorney.

INQUIRY UNDER WAY

Cause and Effect of Airship Shenandoah's Flight to Be Probed.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Investigation of the cause and effects of the thrilling runaway flight of the navy dirigible Shenandoah Wednesday night, when she broke from her mooring mast and rode out a 70-mile gale in badly damaged condition, was begun by the house naval affairs committee today. The committee's inquiry is directed particularly with the view of determining the wisdom and value of the proposed flight of the Shenandoah to the North pole next spring and the ability of the glider craft successfully to negotiate the unprecedented voyage.

Protest Barnett Parole.

Toledo, Jan. 19.—Civic organizations, especially women's clubs, are securing signatures to their protests against the action of the board of paroles in granting freedom to David Barnett, wealthy Toledoan, now confined in Mansfield reformatory, following his conviction upon a charge of mistreating six little girls. These protests will be presented to Daniel W. Williams, member of the state board of paroles, upon his arrival here next week, he having been directed by Governor Donahey to come here and secure first hand information as to the merits of Barnett's case before the parole, granted on condition that he leave the state, becomes effective, Feb. 1.

Slayer Granted Stay.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Ohio supreme court granted a stay of execution until Feb. 8 to Mike Sipsich of Duncanwood, Harrison county, under sentence of death in the Ohio penitentiary for the murder of his wife. The original date for Sipsich's execution was Jan. 25. Sipsich, a native of Serbia, shot his wife, it is charged, during a Serbian party, because she had refused to give him more money to continue in a poker game.

Suspension of Car Service Looms.

Akron, O., Jan. 19.—Suspension of all streetcar service in Akron at midnight, Jan. 31, seemed certain when officials of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company refused definitely to extend the present 5-cent fare for two months, pending completion of new franchise negotiations. An ordinance passed by council, the traction company was given six days in which to accept the terms or tear up its tracks Feb. 1.

Leases Storage Space.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—The state highway department has leased 350,000 square feet of floor space at the general army reserve depot, East Columbus, for the storage and housing of highway machinery and supplies. Most of the material which has come to Ohio as her share of the surplus war supplies of the federal government will be kept at the depot.

Physician Convicted.

Cincinnati, Jan. 19.—Dr. William Seitz, physician of Portsmouth, was found guilty by a jury in United States district court here of having violated the federal anti-narcotic act. Sentence was deferred. Dr. Seitz is charged with having dispensed morphine to alleged narcotic addicts. He maintained they were his patients.

One thousand animals are ready for Dr. Voronoff to begin his work with. He expects to undertake a series of experiments designed to make mules fertile.

Engages Attention of Coolidge and His Cabinet.

AMERICAN VESSELS HELD UP

Eight Standing Off Port of Tampico Awaiting Orders on Account of Rebel Gunboats—Possibility of Sending American Warships to Mexican Waters Touched Upon. Men of Tacoma to Be Relieved.

Washington, Jan. 19.—President Coolidge and his principal cabinet advisers are concentrating practically their entire attention on the difficult situation in Mexico.

The cabinet meeting, the longest since Mr. Coolidge took office, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of problems presented by the growing interference with American commercial and business interests resulting from the activities of the De la Huerta rebels. The possibility of sending American warships to protect American interests in Mexico, it is understood, was touched upon in the discussions.

The effectiveness of the rebel blockade at Tampico was testified to at the state department by a group of oil men, who told Secretary Hughes that eight tankers flying the American flag were standing off the port awaiting orders on account of the rebel warships.

Meanwhile the United States cruiser Richmond is speeding toward Vera Cruz, rebel headquarters, to relieve the men of the cruiser Tacoma, stranded on a reef off the harbor. There are 278 enlisted men of the Tacoma's crew quartered in and about the American consulate at Vera Cruz. Captain Stratton and 42 men, including gun crews, remain aboard the ship.

The state department as yet has received no word from Senor De la Huerta in answer to the American protest of the rebel blockade at Tampico. It is assumed that Consul Wood, at Vera Cruz, delivered the American protest to the De la Huerta headquarters. The protest stated in plain terms that the United States would resent any interference with legitimate American commerce and business interests.

Administration plans to assist President Obregon in suppressing the De la Huerta rebellion received a setback when Acting Governor Davidson declined permission for Mexican troops to pass through Texas to different points along the border. The refusal was not final, as Mr. Davidson added that, if the federal government could show an urgent need for the move and could guarantee protection to Texas citizens, the request might be considered. There is some hope in administration circles that further consideration by Governor Neff, upon his return to Texas, may change the situation. The governors of Arizona and New Mexico already have authorized the passage of the Mexico troops.

TAMPICO PORT SAFE

Federal Defenses Can Hold Off the Rebel Gunboats.

Mexico City, Jan. 19.—From cover behind five American oil tankers anchored off Tampico, two rebel gunboats continued to menace the oil port. Federal shore batteries refrained from firing on the vessels for fear of hitting the tankers.

Eight 80-millimeter guns constitute the federal defense of the entrance to Panuco river. The war office stated that these are entirely adequate to prevent the rebel gunboats entering the river and capturing the port itself.

The piratical status of the gunboats blockading Tampico will render them liable to seizure by the first warship that comes along, according to the belief prevailing here. The foreign office declaration that the gunboats are beyond the law is interpreted to mean a preliminary to seizure of the craft by port authorities. Cruisers flying the Mexican flag would have effected their capture before this if the Mexican government's request for speedy sailing had been granted, according to the official Mexican view here.

J. S. Martin, general agent in New York for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, died on board a Baltimore and Ohio railroad train en route from Chicago to New York. Henry Ford's offer for Muskegon still stands, and no new proposal will be made, it was announced at Detroit.

DONAHEY FAVORS PROBE

Would Get at Seat of Trouble in Ohio Mining Situation.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Governor Donahey in an address before the Ohio Mine Workers' convention, indicated the possibility of the appointment of a "fact-finding commission," composed of miners and mining authorities, the functions of which would be to conduct an intensive survey of the present situation of unemployment among miners, and coal production throughout the Ohio coal fields. "We want to get at the seat of this trouble," Governor Donahey declared, "and the appointment of such a commission seems a feasible procedure." He indicated it would be appointed at the wish of the miners.

The governor also told the miners that he intended to appeal to the next general assembly for the necessary legislation giving prisoners of the state's penal institutions pay for work done by them, so that the families of each might be provided for during the period of their incarceration.

Ohio For Cox, Says Baker.

Cleveland, Jan. 19.—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet, declared here that Ohio Democrats will support James M. Cox for president. A report that Mr. Baker would seek the Democratic nomination was made in a purported interview at St. Petersburg, Fla., with Milton Young, one-time secretary to Baker, when the latter was mayor of Cleveland. "I am interested in the adoption of a rational foreign policy by the United States," the former cabinet official said. "I am giving all my time to the advocacy of the entrance of the United States into the league of nations."

Rebels Driven Back.

Washington, Jan. 19.—A statement issued by the Mexican embassy forecast "complete success for the government troops operating against the Vera Cruz rebels." Revolutionary forces defending the port, it was stated, "have been driven back with heavy losses in every engagement," and the advance of the Obregon forces continues. Military operations in the oil region, according to the statement, "are being continued," and the revolt in northern Coahuila "has been stamped out."

Ships Run Blockade.

Tampico, Jan. 19.—Despite the blockade of the port of Tampico by rebel war vessels, 12 ships entered this port and four cleared without molestation. The federal land batteries at Mirimar, near the mouth of the Panuco river, engaged the fleet for an hour, without damage to either side. Federal forces repulsed a rebel attack at Juan Casiano and the latter withdrew to their base of supplies at Chinampa.

Harmon, Hotel Man, Dead.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Ben Harmon, 62, manager of the New Southern hotel and for nearly 16 years manager of the old Neil house, died suddenly of apoplexy in his office at the hotel. He was one of the best known hotel men in the state.

OPPOSITION

By CORONA REMINGTON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

JASON CARUTHERS had two jolly old blue eyes that sparkled with mirth and looked out upon life with a sort of amused sympathy, a tolerance and understanding, a kind of rule of thumb psychology based upon years of contact with human nature. "Folks ain't actually bad," he would say, "that is, sure enough, downright bad. Just you let a man know you think he's going to skin you or lay down on the job or whatever it is, and he'll do it or bust. But you expect the best of a man and the good'll come out."

From this it can be seen that Jason Caruthers was not a great man nor a wonderful one, but sort of a homely old philosopher with a heart as big as a house and a sympathy that surpassed understanding. Caruthers was a shining mark for those who were weary and heavy laden, and he would always send them away with fresh courage and inspiration and often with a feeling that their woes weren't so bad after all.

Came a day when Bill Fleming, the idol of the town, walked into Caruthers' little store with a dragging and a droop to his great big shoulders.

"You're a swell looking football player today," Jason greeted. "What's the matter? But I can look at your eyes and see it's a case of heart trouble."

"Sorry," he said after a pause. "I didn't mean to butt in, but I was sorry."

Bill, feeling the other's contrition and subconsciously anxious for some one to talk to, hurried to make amends.

"Glad you did, Uncle Jason, and you're right. Me and Amelia's about to split up."

"Sure enough now. Don't feel like telling me that trouble? Maybe I could help a little."

"Getting too flighty. Running around to all these dances and going with that Watkins feller and she's bobbed her hair and the other day she had paint on her face—paint!"

"Do tell. That is pretty bad. She's a sweet little trick, Bill; I always did like her—not much bigger'n your arm. I used to watch you and her out walking Sundays and I'd think it'd be no end nice if you two was to get married some day. And so it's

"Quarreled. We've been fussing for two months."

"You know what I believe, son? I believe you're right. The more you talked the worse she did get. There ain't nothing wrong with Amelia but she's kinder dare-devilish and mischievous, and it's just enough for you to tell her not to do a thing to make her want to do it. She's sorter proud of her own power, and it's gone to her head a mite. Now, if I was you, I'd give her plenty o' rope and not get after her no more about nothing. You know, opposition'll make a peaceful little lamb kick and buck, and it's the same way with humans sometimes."

On the way home from the store that night Bill felt somehow strangely comforted. He would try Uncle Jason's plan, for it could do no harm.

So the next time Amelia went to a dance, instead of staying home and brooding when she refused him as an escort, he bought a new suit of clothes, put a flower in his buttonhole and appeared at the dance himself. He made it a point to introduce any men she didn't know and did all he could to help her have a good time, but he was careful not to hang around her very much himself.

Amelia was puzzled—she shook her curly head and laughed and danced and flirted, but inside a peculiar uneasiness crept into her being. Bill had never treated her that way before—what could he mean? He was as pleasant as ever, yet so different; somehow far away and impersonal. What could he mean? When he called the following evening she would ask him.

But he didn't call—nor the next evening, nor the next, nor the next, and it was a week before she saw him again. One whole week of absolute torture. Amelia refused to eat, she couldn't sleep, her cheeks were pale, the neglected bobbed hair hung in forlorn little strings about her face. All the jauntiness gone—a most pathetic little girl with a breaking heart.

When Bill saw her his own heart jumped with sympathy and triumph, but he was master still of himself. He stood in the doorway and held out his arms.

"If you've had enough," he said, surprised at his own coolness, "you may come here."

Somehow she stumbled across the room and into his arms.

"What made you do it?" he asked at last.

"I—I don't know, but when I found out you didn't care whether I did it or not, somehow I just didn't want to do it any more."

And Bill Fleming smiled as he thought of Uncle Jason's lamb and the opposition.

Orchard Intercropping
Secondard Proposition

From the year that an orchard is first set out, intercropping is a secondary proposition and should be treated as such—the trees come first. It has usually been considered desirable to make use of the land between the trees for the first few years from the standpoint of increased profit. Furthermore, a cultivated crop insures cultivation of the trees.

To Adjust Screws in Wood or Plaster.

If you dip a screw into oil before applying the screw driver to send it into wood, you will find that the screw will go in without the usual difficulty. When preparing to put a screw into plaster, first make a hole in the plaster larger than the screw. Fill the hole with a paste made of plaster of paris mixed with alum water. Put in the screw, then allow it to get hard, and the screw will be very firmly lodged in the plaster.

Savage Mother Owl.
As she was hanging out clothes a farmer's wife, near Muncie, Ind., was savagely attacked by a big brown owl. Flying from a neighboring tree, the bird pecked the woman's head and eye and pulled out several shreds of hair. The injury to the eye necessitated an operation. It was found afterward that the owl had a nest of young birds close by.

Orchard Freak.
A curious horticultural freak is to be seen in a garden at Templeton, Pembrokeshire, where an apple tree has a black-currant bush growing out of the trunk. One of the branches of the apple tree was broken, and apparently a currant seed found its way into the socket. Both tree and bush are flourishing.

WHAT POSY PETALS TELL
"Every Daisy in the Dell Knows the Secret, Knows It Well."

Probably most people have, at some period of their lives, plucked a daisy and, thinking of one of the opposite sex, picked the petals of the flower one by one, saying at the same time, "He loves me; he loves me not."

If the last petal picked coincides with "he loves me," all is well. If with "he loves me not," all is wrong. There are several modifications of this superstition of daisy picking, but it seems to owe its origin to the Scandinavians, observes London Tit-Bits. The very name of the flower chosen for this incantation is significant of the origin of the superstition—day's eye, Anglo-Saxon, daiges eage—that is the sun; and looking at the daisy the reason of its being so named is apparent.

Freyja, the goddess of love in the old Scandinavian mythologies, and whose cult spread over northern Germany, had her home in the sun—and she thus became associated in the minds of her worshippers with the daisy—the flower sun. Therefore it was most fitting to consult the daisy upon matters of love.

The altars of Freyja have long crumbled to dust, but young men and maidens still consult her symbolic flower to read the hearts of their loved ones, believing, in the words of the popular song, that "Every daisy in the dell knows the secret, knows it well."

Milkweed Seeds.
The milkweed seeds are concealed in a pod, which breaks open and exposes them to the wind. Up they go through the air, each seed carried by a ball of silky down, the threads so frail that you are astonished when you examine them with a microscope. Each thread turns out to be a separate tube ribbed with dark vein-like streaks arranged in an irregular manner. When a milkweed pod bursts open, you can imagine yourself at a miniature aero meet, in which scores of white craft soar up into the morning wind.

FORMATION OF GUM.
The formation of gum in the bark of a cherry, peach, or plum tree is not a disease, but rather a symptom that something is wrong with the tree. This gum formation, or gumosis as it is called, is brought about by a partial dissolving of the cell walls of the bark and wood and may follow an injury or unfavorable condition. Mechanical injuries or wounds of any kind, the attacks of insects or diseases and injury to the tissues by frost are likely to give rise to gumosis.

The treatment, as suggested by botanists of the Ohio Experiment Station, will depend upon the cause. If due to disease or insects, proper measures for their control, including a suitable spraying schedule, are recommended. Mechanical injuries and wounds may be trimmed smooth and protected by a coat of pure paint gas tar, or water glass. If due to freezing, the dead branches are pruned out. In all cases of gumosis conditions favoring the health of the tree will aid materially in the recovery.

Cause of Franc's Fall.
Berlin, Jan. 19.—The fall of the French franc is alleged to have been brought about mainly through a Wall street offensive against the French money, directed by J. P. Morgan. Early last year Morgan is said to have bought extensively of French bonds and stocks and all sorts of obligations. It was taken then as an effort by Morgan to participate in French industry. It is now stated that all of these obligations were thrown on the market in one day, causing the collapse of the franc, which had already been weakened by the stand of the French government. It is suspected that British capital is participating in the offensive.

The Art of Not Hearing.
The art of not hearing should be learnt by all. It is fully as important to domestic happiness as a cultivated ear, for which both money and time are expended. There are so many things which it is painful to hear, so many which we ought not to hear, so very many which, if heard, will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness, that everyone should be educated to take in or shut out sounds according to his or her pleasure.—Exchange.

STRICKEN.

Edward Himrod, of Wauchula, Florida, formerly of this city, suffered a stroke of paralysis last Saturday evening which effected his right side.

Mrs. Lulu Ross is in receipt of a letter from the daughter of James P. Antill, dated New Samaria, Florida, in which she stated that her father suffered a stroke of paralysis Christmas and was unconscious for three hours, but has since rallied and his condition is improving.

Sir Isaac Pitman.

Pitman, the inventor of modern shorthand writing, was a worker. At sixty-five he was in his office at 6 a. m. summer and winter. Till he was fifty he never took a holiday or wanted one. For 20 years he worked 14 hours at his desk, from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., with 2 hours off for meals. At forty-five he began to knock off at 6 p. m. He lived to be eighty-four. At twenty-five dyspepsia nearly killed him, but he got over it by giving up meat and wine. He worked incessantly at his system of shorthand, giving it popularity by his complete reports of lectures by prominent scientists in Manchester, England. His successor, Benjamin Pitman, improved upon his plan. But shorthand was well known among the ancients, some of the old Roman Orations, those of Cicero having been preserved for us that way, in all probability.

Danced Themselves Into Frenzy.

There is nothing new about the endurance dance. In 1734, when peasant and noble for leagues about gathered at the festival of St. John, at Aix-la-Chapelle, a fellow in motley danced over the cobbles. Presently he was joined by a beggar, so that the two grayed companionably and leaped and pranked. Then a stout burgher hurled his bulk into the revel. A conflagration of dancing, without apparent reason, was kindled, and before the sun declined the streets were thronged with prancing thousands. Indeed, so runs the chronicle, they "commenced dancing in a wild and frantic manner, many losing entire control over themselves, and continuing to dance until dropping down from fatigue, and some, in a moment of frenzy, dashing out their brains against walls."

Foxy Birds.

Many birds have the trick of tumbling along on the ground in front of sportsmen in order to draw them away from their nests.

SOME OF LIFE'S COMEDIES

Picked at Random From Recorded Doings of the Very Newly Married.

Here's to the very newly married. It was winter and the young husband complained bitterly of a "beastly" pain in his back; lumbago, pleurisy; "Heaven knows what!" he gloomed to his terrified spouse. And talked largely of more life insurance. Terrified into action she recalled her mother's remedy for such mysterious aches and pains, says a New York Sun and Globe writer.

A boiling hot bath and—wasn't it borax? On this fateful morning she therefore drew the bath, arranged the towels and seeking in the kitchenette—equipped for her while on her recent wedding trip by her feminine relatives—she discovered the borax in a large bag. Uncertain of the quantity, she flung the contents into the tub and ordered her husband to soak. He did, from crown to toe.

After which there were scenes. The borax was starch.

And then there was the bride who on a cruise with her groom in a forty-four sailing sloop, in the midst of a really terrific storm when the crewless captain and owner was struggling with sheets and centerboard, called loudly from the cabin. "We shall capsize!" He groaned but fled to her rescue, and found her sitting peacefully on a rocking camp stool. She smiled sweetly when he entered.

"Would you mind," she asked tenderly, "buttoning my shoes."

And about the bride whose husband demanded sausage meat—the kind one fries, you know, the back home sort, served in little sizzling cakes? How about her when she went to her butcher and, learning that no sausage meat was to be had at the moment, bought with gravity and hard earned lucre a dozen or so small fat sausages and ordered the patient butcher to strip off the skins and dig forth the succulent innards. How about her? How about them all, bless them?

Exporting Worm Holes.

That it pays to investigate needs of foreign markets is shown by the following incident which occurred in a foreign country a short time ago, recently reported to the lumber division of the Department of Commerce.

An American exporter sent an unusually poor consignment of oak, which was found to be wormy, to his overseas connection, but no market could be found for this parcel. This consignment would have caused a great loss to the exporter were it not for the fact that the consignee happened to visit an antique furniture factory. The manufacturer was at that time busily engaged in making antique grandfather's clocks and found the oak in question to answer his purpose very nicely because it eliminated the work of boring worm holes by hand. The parcel was disposed of at a premium and a profitable connection was established.

Force, Not Elegance.

During the war an enlisted man who had done well in our service was commissioned as a second lieutenant. He knew his drill and his duties perfectly, but owing to his lack of education the words that he used in his reports were sometimes puzzling.

During the fighting around Chateau-Thierry he found that he and his platoon were far in advance of the rest of the line and in a very tight place; there was little hope of their getting out unless help came quickly. He had already lost a good many men. Calling his runner to his side, he gave him this message to deliver to the colonel: "Beat it to the old man, kid, as fast as your legs'll carry you and tell him, with my respects, to hustle up reinforcements, as me and the whole platoon are all decomposed!"

In spite of the choice of words the reinforcements arrived in time.—Youth's Companion.

Couldn't Fool Him.

Vesuvius always has a plume of smoke waving over it. This caught the eye of one visitor to Naples to the exclusion of all else.

For days he viewed it from his hotel window with a telescope.

Proceeding then to make the acquaintance of some city officials, he asked the name of the mountain. They told him it was Vesuvius.

"Well," he stated, "I'm a revenue officer at home, and I'll just give your police a little tip. I been watching that hill a week now. I've had experience in such matters. They can't fool me. Somebody is running a still."

To Be Restored to Fertility.

The plain of Gennesaret, the garden of the Lord, over which Josephus became dithyrambic, which in his day had a soil so fruitful that all sorts of trees and fruit grew in it, lies waste save for a Jewish colony that is banking up the soil in a corner and preparing a nursery for trees. The grapes and figs have given place to a jungle of weeds! For the shadow of the Turk has blighted all the land. But it will yet be a garden of the Lord once more.—Dr. Norman Maclean.

The Old Barns.

A reporter has been visiting back yards to find out what has been done with the old barns, monuments to the age of the horse-drawn vehicle. He found that many of them have been converted into garages, the lofts empty except for cobwebs. Others are used for storage places. A few have been converted into playhouses for children—mostly by the children.—Columbia Missourian.

PUBLISHED LEAFLET ON FOREST PLANTING

Edmund Secrest, state forester, says the best time to plant most kinds of forest trees is in early spring just as soon as the frost is out of the ground and the soil is dry enough, altho both hardwood trees and deciduous conifers may be planted anytime during the dormant season when the soil is in good condition.

Evergreen trees, he says, should be planted in the spring and if planted early they get a better start and a larger percent will live. The earlier the planting is done the better it will be for the trees.

In a leaflet on planting, Mr. Secrest also discusses the planting site, the spacing and best methods of planting the different species and the care of young trees before and after planting. This leaflet is published by the Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio, and will be sent free upon request.

CRAPSHOOTERS

Fifteen boys were placed under arrest at Darbyville Thursday evening on the charge of playing barn yard golf. They appeared before Justice Strawser Friday and put up $7.50 each for their appearance next Monday. Some one over in that placid village is determined to clean up that proslac burg and is keeping Sheriff Young and Deputy Howard Irwin busy running over there to keep the peace.

Company Formed in New York for the Purpose of Cleaning and Refinishing Them.

That time-worn and still unanswered question, "What becomes of all the old pins?" seems to be in a fair way of being answered in New York city at least, for a company has been formed for the purpose of refinishing used pins and restoring them to their original newness. Not that representatives of the company are to patrol the streets gathering up discarded pins, but it is said that in some of the large dressmaking establishments the pin bill sometimes reaches as high as $1,500 annually. Used only once, the pins are removed and allowed to drop on the floor, where they are swept away. Even if gathered up at the close of the day, the pins are too dirty to be used again on fine fabrics. The company mentioned purposes to effect a saving in the pin item by taking all the used pins, cleaning and refinishing them.

More than a year of experimentation was necessary in order to discover a process for satisfactorily refinishing the pins. At first it was thought that if the pins simply were gathered by means of a magnet instead of sweeping, they could be used again without refinishing, but even then it was found that the pins retained enough of the floor dust to soil white fabrics and make their use unprofitable. A process was finally discovered, however, whereby the refinishing pins can be returned to the users at half the cost of the new product and still the refinishing company will be enabled to make a fair working profit.

Life Saved by Pup.

Only a common hound, but he fought a maddened bull to save his eight-year-old master's life and won. The boy was resting under a tree in a field near Sunbury, Pa., when the infuriated bull saw him. The animal charged and tossed him high into the air. One horn sank into the child's arm. The boy screamed with pain as the animal dragged him across the field, but no one heard except the little dog. The pup was game, but cautious, too, and opened his attack from the rear. He sank his teeth into the bull's hind leg and hung on despite violent kicks. The bull released the little lad to deal with the new annoyance and the hound let go. That was his strategy. Snapping and snarling, he backed away from the charging bull, dodging and leading the animal away from the boy. The little victim crawled away under the fence and the pup at once gave up the fight. With a final snarl, he dashed away after his master, wagging his tail proudly.

Nazareth Becoming Modern.

A garage at Nazareth rather jars on the susceptibilities of Christian people who have a great reverence for the little Palestinian village where Christ spent his boyhood days. Such, however, is the case, rendered necessary by the increasing tide of automobile traffic. The new repair shop is in charge of Arabs, Syrians, or Jews who learned the trade in the United States. Even in Nazareth, which in other respects is little different in its seclusion and repose from that day twenty centuries ago when the Savior sent forth the message of brotherhood and equality which transformed the world, there are modern garages and machine shops. They make a striking contrast with the poor homes of the natives, and are within a short distance of the site of the abode which once was the carpenter shop of the Master of Men.

Aero Newspaper.

The airplanes carrying mail and passengers between London and Paris now actually have a printing outfit on board them and publish a newspaper on the voyage. Each day before the sailing hour the latest news of the world, political, financial and general, is rushed to the editor. During the flight news is sent out by wireless from London and Paris at regular intervals, so that the aerial editor is in instant touch with affairs. The news is prepared, set up, and the paper printed during the aeroplane's flight. The editions are delivered to the towns over which the airplane flies by means of parachutes. The aerial newspaper contains stock quotations, special features and news in general.

Wanted Information.

Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, is serious-minded. He seldom tells a story. His pet one is this: "Several years ago one of the committees of which I was a member had under consideration Indian heirship cases. Particulars about them were stated clearly and fully in the book of estimates and all that we had to do was to follow that, item by item. One senator, who must have been wool gathering, spoke up: 'Mr. Chairman, I wish you would explain to me what in the world Indians have to do with airships.'"

One Sunday.

It was in Indianapolis. A Sunday school teacher asked a little boy his name. Before he had time to answer another little boy said, "His name is John Clark."

Another boy, "Nope, it's John Fox."

Still another, "It isn't either. He's John Anderson."

"Sh," said the teacher, and when quiet reigned, she asked the little boy to tell his name.

He replied, "John Anderson."

Immediately this exclamation came from a little boy in the back of the room: "Goab! Is she married again?"

AMUSEMENTS

If you plan to send your boy to boarding school, it might be well for you to first see "Boys to Board" the latest of the series of Pathe's "Our Gang" comedies, which will be shown Monday at the Met theater. The entire aggregation of Hal Roach's "Rascals" are seen behaving their worst, including Micky Daniels, "Sunshine Sammy," Jackie Davis, "Little Farina," Jackie Condon, "Fatty" Joe Cobb and Mary Kornman. A number of grownups also help along the comedy moments.

Boarding schools are hardly appropriate places for youngsters to get their early moulding if all have to endure what these kiddies go thru in their latest endeavor. No comedy turned out by the Hal Roach forces in a year contains more laughs than this two-reel mirth maker. In the parlance of the screen it "has everything."

"Boys to Board" tells the simple story of the down trodden husband whose wife conducts a school for boys. The meek little man never has fulfilled his youthful desires of hunting Indians, so when the youngsters in the school decide they have been treated rough enough and plan to escape he determines to accompany them.

Their midnight escape—presenting a few real thrills—leads them into a bootlegger's den, and things happen so fast that it is difficult for the audience to keep up with the constant stream of laughable moments and hilarious situations. The night scenes are especially humorous and make the offering one of the funniest contributions to this series of comedies. Tom McNamara is responsible for the direction.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT.

Washington is the slowest spot in the country to react to the sentiment of the voters. Any country editor can see which way the wind is blowing weeks before his senator knows even that there is a wind. But why should Republican leaders supposedly cooperating with a Republican president for a successful administration and a successful election be so hasty and eager in throwing up the sponge? Everybody outside the capital knows that the bonus is slipping, that tax reduction, honest Mellon tax reduction is gaining. The chances are strong that with half a will on the part of Republican senators and representatives the program in all its essentials as President Coolidge has rightly insisted, will be enacted.

So why not fight a little—or at least maintain a direct silence—instead of surrendering every weekend? Mr. Mellon and Mr. Coolidge can do and are doing the rest. More support of the Longworth brand would be cordially appreciated by Republican voters.—New York Tribune.

HULL PLEASED

Holds New York Ideal City For Democratic Convention.

New York, Jan. 19.—Chairman Cordell Hull headed a subcommittee of 14 of the Democratic national committee which came to this city to complete arrangements for the Democratic national convention here in June.

Hull expressed his delight that New York city won the honor of entertaining the convention and said he was very much pleased at preparations made by Chairman Joseph P. Day and his convention committee to care for the 1,100 delegates and hundreds of thousands of visitors due here before June 24. "I have been told," Hull said, "but now I am convinced, that New York is the ideal city for the greatest Democratic national convention ever held. We are simply delighted with the hospitality with which we have been received, and the splendid facilities offered us."

RATE BOOST SUSPENDED

State Utilities Company to Probe Phone Proposal.

Columbus, Jan. 19.—Increased long distance telephone toll charges proposed by the Ohio Bell Telephone company, to be effective Jan. 21 throughout Ohio, were suspended by the public utilities commission.

The suspension resulted from protests filed with the commission against the new schedule and is for 120 days, during which time the proposed rates will be investigated by the commission and a hearing conducted to determine whether they are justified. The increase asked by the telephone company is 5 cents on each call over 30 miles and, under 104 miles. The utilities commission experts estimate the increase would add $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year to the company's revenues. Company officials say it would amount to $400,000 a year.

What Star Gazers Lack.
Our observation is that an astronomer has a great deal of latitude, but not much money.—Dallas News.

The Nursery.
Bright colors, plenty of light, clean windows, an abundance of good colored prints and toys without number are the proper furnishings for a nursery. Nursery! Why, the very name tells you what it ought to be—the home of childhood—the most important room in the house—a room that will greatly tend to stamp the character of your child for the remainder of his life.

"Shun-Pikes."
Not all dictionaries contain the word "shun-pike," but it was in common use in this country a century ago and throws an amusing light on the character of some of our thrifty ancestors. A "shun-pike" was a short byroad that left a turnpike on one side of a tollgate and joined it again on the other.—Youth's Companion.

WOULD MAKE FARMER LOAN DEPEND ON PRACTICE OF CROP DIVERSITY

Farmers and Bankers Are Economic Team Mates, but Obligation Rests on Farmer to Protect Soil and Balance Crops, Says D. H. Otis.

By D. H. OTIS

Director, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

THE banker may properly be considered the team mate of the farmer, and as such must work in perfect harmony. Economic conditions demand it. The work is too heavy. It requires a team. The interdependence of the farmer and banker is so close that self-preservation demands that they pull together. If agriculture fails we all fail. There are no two industries that offer greater opportunities for mutual helpfulness, for increasing profits and bank deposits than do banking and farming.

D. H. Otis

The Banker-Farmer movement presents a program that reaches down through the surface to the very roots of things. It recognizes the truth that bank prosperity depends not upon the prosperity of a few but upon the prosperity of all and especially of the average man and the average woman. In the last analysis we must recognize a community of interest, "each for all and all for each."

Periods of low farmer purchasing power are invariably followed by a decided increase in the number of business failures. When the income per acre is increased from one to two dollars there is a direct effect in decreasing the number of business failures and, vice versa, with a decrease of one to two dollars in the income per acre, business failures mount steadily upward.

City Bankers and Country Conditions. Bankers, if anybody, are affected more quickly and more directly than other business men. A period of agricultural depression is immediately noticeable in the balances that the country bank carries with its city correspondent. City banks are beginning to recognize this. Many of them are taking an active interest in the Banker-Farmer movement.

There are some fundamentals in farming with which all business men should be familiar. A bank would not long succeed if it should continue to use its capital stock for running expenses. Neither will the farm. Farmers have been living not upon the interest from their investments but upon their principal. Almost every effort by American farmers has resulted in decreasing the fertility of the soil. The banker who drives into the country and observes this process of mining the fertility from the land should feel that to that extent the resources of his bank are being sapped.

Yet some of our bankers are continuing to loan money to the one-crop farmer. When such a farmer comes around for a loan the banker should make the loan on the condition that he keep at least one cow, one sow and a couple of dozen hens, at least enough livestock to feed his own family. Agriculture is sick, production is unbalanced. Farmers are paying freight and other overhead charges on food products they ought to be raising at home.

Less Time for Agitators

More diversified farming may mean less automobile riding; it ought to. Our economic problems cannot be solved unless we are willing to work. The one-crop farmer is not performing his share of work. He needs profitable employment throughout the year. Loafing on the farm ought to be made unpopular. Business men work throughout the year. Why shouldn't the farmer? If he did, there would be less time to listen to the agitator. The latter only increases discontent, makes men less capable and prolongs the time of recovery. The farmer must work his way out and not look in vain for the Government to legislate high prices.

But if we get our farmers to working full time will we not have over-production? This over-production cry blinds us to the real issue. There may be times when certain crops, because of climatic or economic conditions, are unprofitable and yet there are other crops that are profitable in a well worked out system of diversification. In the livestock sections we seldom hear of an over-production of alfalfa or clover. In all sections of the country we are importing either food or feed that we ought to be raising at home. Our cropping systems need to be readjusted to meet present needs. We need to do just a little more constructive thinking.

Preparedness.

When the iceman came out of the house he found a small boy sitting on one of his blocks.

"Ere," he roared, "what are yer a-sitting on that for? Git off of it."

The boy raised a tear-stained face. "Was you ever a boy?" he inquired faintly.

"Of course I was," said the iceman, fuming. "But—"

"And did you never play truant?" put in the youngster.

"Of course I did," said the iceman.

"Now then, you—"

"An' when you got home did your father take a stick an'—"

"Sit where you are, my little man," said the iceman. "I understand."

Curing a Bad Habit.

Very frequently dogs will get into the habit of sucking eggs, and once this is started it is usually hard to break. With some dogs a sound whipping or giving them a hot egg will effect the cure. But with others a more severe lesson is necessary. The most effectual remedy is to draw from an egg some of the contents through a hole drilled at one of the ends. Then insert in this aperture a quantity of red pepper, placing the egg in such a place that the dog is sure to find it. After one or two experiences the dog will soon give the eggs a wide berth.—Sportsman's Digest.

Legume Is Satisfactory

Crop for Poultry Flock

One of the most satisfactory crops to grow on the ground where poultry ranges is the legume. Clover or alfalfa are ideal crops for this purpose. A half acre of ground seeded to either one of these legumes will furnish enough green feed for a hundred or more chickens.

Deep Corn Cultivation

Will Cut Many of Roots

When the stalks of corn are 18 inches high, the roots have met across a three-and-one-half-foot row. Deep cultivation at this time will cut many of the roots and check the growth of the plants. A good rule to follow is to cultivate deep early in the season and shallow later when the plants are larger.

American Indian a Mystery.

The origin of the American Indian is a matter of dispute. Ethnologically, the Indian resembles most closely certain Mongolian and Siberian peoples. It is, therefore, believed by most authorities that his ancestors crossed from Asia to Alaska and thence down the coast of North America.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON III

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman.

Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Banks are defined as "institutions chartered to receive deposits and make loans." What is a bank deposit? What is a bank loan?

BANK DEPOSIT = money or checks left with a bank to be kept safe from thieves, fire or other loss; to earn interest, if in a savings account; to be convenient for the future use of the depositor; to be loaned out to earn the expenses of the bank's services, and interest for the depositor when in an interest bearing account.

BANK LOAN = advance of money to help business enterprise so that business may again help the earner and saver by giving employment.

J. H. Puelicher

In the Middle Ages safes were very few. Goldsmiths kept their jewelry in strong boxes, and also accepted for safekeeping, for a fee, money packed and marked with the owner's name. In those days money saved lay idle; now it is put to work by banks for the benefit of the depositor and the community.

RATS USED TO AID
THE MOTHER RACE
Effects of Diet Studied by University Professor.
GIVES NEW FACTS TO SCIENCE

Dr. E. V. McCollum, professor of biochemistry in the School of Hygiene and Public Health at Johns Hopkins university, has put the rat to work at a task that may eventually mean longer and better life to man.
For fifteen years Doctor McCollum has been experimenting with rats—thousands of them—and discovering facts in the effect of diet upon growth, health and heredity. These facts, when enough of them have been assembled and studied, are expected to aid in establishing new principles in the science of nutrition.

Professor McCollum's laboratory has accommodations for 3,000 rats, though only 340 inmates are undergoing experiment this summer. When the visitor enters the room not a sound betrays the presence of a living thing.
Cages in rows line the walls and the floor, each heavily screened. Here and there the quick flitting of a tail shows that a cage is occupied.

Diseased Rats Destroyed.
All of the rats in the room are normal, healthy specimens. They are bred there at the colony. Any of the stock rats that show signs of becoming unhealthy before entering into experimentation are destroyed.

New arrivals at the colony, in the form of baby rats, are fed orange juice from an eye dropper. As they grow larger their diet is changed, and when they have matured a regular diet is prescribed. This diet consists of 25 per cent wheat, 25 per cent maize, 20.5 per cent rolled oats, 10 per cent flaxseed oil meal, 10 per cent casein and five-tenths of 1 per cent calcium carbonate. Daily a bowl of milk is placed in each cage and twice a week the rats get cabbage or carrots. This, with the addition of tap water, is the diet upon which the stock rats thrive. When a rat enters the experimental stage distilled water is used.

Odd Effect of Diet.
Doctor McCollum has succeeded in bringing about, by means of diets, practically any condition of health desired. He can make the rat prematurely old, make it wild, make it tame, and even regulate to the day its span of life. Further than that he has proved that in many cases a rat's reaction to a certain diet will be identical with that of a man fed on the same diet. He says:

"There is perhaps nothing more worthy of careful consideration as a human problem than the suggestive results of the behavior of our experimental rats as modified by diet."
"The well-nourished rat," Doctor McCollum says, "when placed in a cage, wants to explore its surroundings.
Its coat is sleek, its eyes bright and it shows no signs of nervousness. After exploring its new home it does not manifest much activity, but is perfectly contented while on familiar ground."
To show that the healthy rat does not mind being handled, Doctor McCollum opens a cage, reaches in with bare hands, pulls six rats together by their tails and calmly lifts them out, holding them up for inspection, heads downward. They do not squeal and they make no attempt to bite.

Entirely different symptoms are exhibited by rats on a deficient diet.
When the cage is opened they retreat to a far corner and show signs of fright. These rats are handled with a pair of long tongs, and it is often impossible to pick them up, because of their frantic jumping about.

The young of a mother rat suffering from malnutrition will develop the mother's symptoms, and after a few days will sit up on their haunches and squeal for hours. Death usually follows.
One of the experiments consists in feeding a rat a diet that is adequate in all respects but in its protein content. A growing rat fed on this diet will become dwarfed. If, after several months the diet is changed and a normal one substituted, the rat will once more start to grow. Even though it may reach full size, however, it will always be deformed in some way. A month-old rat is considered as mature as a three-year-old child.

Lengthening Life by Diet.
The average life of a rat is two years. Under proper diets, however, Doctor McCollum has lengthened this span to three years. He has also formulated diets that will determine, almost to the day, how long a rat will live.

Two sets of young rats will be taken and placed in different cages. All the rats will be the same age and of healthy stock. One cage will have one diet, the other cage a diet almost identical, with the exception of one item.
In some cases a very slightly different ratio will be made.

All of the rats will flourish. They will appear normal and healthy, and each group will make the same progress. At the end of six months, Doctor McCollum will have two cages of apparently healthy animals, but here the change begins.

The rats with the adequate diet will continue bright-eyed and sleek coated.
They will not become nervous, and will exhibit no undue alarm regarding their surroundings. The rats in the other cage will show signs of nervousness.
Their coats will go without the attention usually given them, and eyes will become dull. Rapidly they become thin and emaciated, and are ready to bite

the hand thrust into the cage. Soon afterward they die. The varying of this diet ever so slightly will produce like results, but lengthening or decreas-ing the time it takes to accomplish the experiment.

Life of Rat is Three Years.
When a rat becomes old it exhibits signs of irritability. Its coat becomes rough, and its temper mean. Walking along the rows of cages one will see,
here and there, a rat that looks for all the world like a venerable grandfather of the rat colony. You are sure that it is at least three years old, which is the extreme length of a rat's life.
Here again the experiments are to blame. The rat may be only three months or a year old. Diets containing certain things and lacking in others have made the rat prematurely old.

One of the most notable experiments deals with the mother rat and her young. Regulated diets will leave a female rat incapable of producing a family. Other diets will affect the young to such an extent that litter after litter will be brought into the world, only to die. A well-proportioned diet, on the other hand, will save every baby in ninety-nine litters out of every hundred.

Diet and Offspring.
Under normal conditions the mother rat is solicitous of her young. While properly nourished she will give them every attention. But when Doctor McCollum changes the diet, the mother will become nervous, and will eventually attack and destroy her family.

Experiments have proved that a diet adequate to maintain the mother in a healthy condition will allow her to care properly for her young. But as a mother rat is fed a diet that produces certain ailments or adverse conditions,
these symptoms are invariably imparted to the baby rats in the mother's milk. If the diet is corrected, both mother and young may return to health. This also holds good in cases where the mother has destroyed the litter. After a mother has destroyed two or three litters, while on an insufficient diet, the diet has been changed to an adequate one, and the next litter has received the most careful attention from the mother.

The study extends down several generations of the same family. Rats fed on an inadequate diet, which at the same time will permit them to produce a litter, will die naturally. The second and third generations of the same family will have the same diet,
and at the end of the third generation
the family usually dies out.

Started Work Fifteen Years Ago.

Since Doctor McCollum started his experiments fifteen years ago, the importance of diet has been recognized more and more. By adding certain foods he has succeeded in creating a disease, and by substituting other foods
he has accomplished the feat of correcting morbid conditions. He considers proper feeding the most important step toward the prevention of human ills.

One of the experiments has to do with the value of light in curing diseases. According to Doctor McCollum, a large percentage of school children in the United States are suffering from rickets. In many cases this ill has been contracted by the baby from the mother, while in other cases it is the result of improper diets. Tests have been made to determine just what diet is responsible for the condition. "In many cases," Doctor McCollum says,
"the excessive amount of cereals consumed is responsible."

Outside of the rat laboratory is a big lawn. In the middle stands a stool and on the stool is a screened cage.
One lone rat occupies the cage, and with the hot sun glaring down from above, seeks vainly for shade. The rat is suffering from rickets, as a result of improper diet, and now he is being subjected to another experiment which may cure him of the disease.

U. S. MAKES LARGEST LENSES

Bureau of Standards Completes Work
From Domestic Glass.

The largest lenses ever successfully constructed from domestic manufactured glass have been completed by the bureau of standards at Washington. Declared by expert examiners to be perfect, they measure 12 inches in diameter and have a focal length of 12 feet 8 inches.

An unusual feature of the completed work is that it forms what is known as an "achromatic combination." Use of crown glass in one lens and flint glass in the other is said to bring light of all colors to a common focal point, impossible in lenses made of one type of glass. The instrument will be used by the bureau for conducting intricate experiments in the science of optics.

PINHOLES DRILLED IN STEEL

Delicate Device Is Used in Manufacturing Adding Machines.

Making an adding machine required the drilling of ten holes in a plate a thirty-second of an inch thick, each hole to be accurate to a thousandth of an inch, yet no bigger than a pin
in diameter, says the Washington Star.
The result was a most ingenious machine that stands about 12 inches high.
The drill which was built carries ten spindles, each holding a drill of number six Morse gauge, which is about the size of the pin of ordinary use.

Each little sliver of steel that does the work is driven by a belt operating through a cam head and therefore works at the same speed as that of its neighbors. The actual drilling requires ten seconds.

Wasn't Quite Ready for Ride.
As the farm where we stayed last summer was out of the beaten track of automobiles, Bobby was both curious and afraid of our car when we came there. At first nothing would induce him to take a ride in it. After one of our urgings to just sit in it, he drew his seven-year-old elster (who certainly was not afraid of the car) down to him and whispered in a most serious manner: "Tell those people when I get older and tamer I'll ride with them."

Patience.

A phlegmatic insensibility is as different from patience, as a pool from a harbor. Into the one, indolence naturally sinks us; but if we arrive at the other it is by encountering many an adverse wind and rough wave, with a more skillful pilot at the helm than ourselves, and a company under better command than the passions.—Dilwyn.

Ear Tag System Is Practical for Flocks

Especially Used for Identifying Each Individual.

An ingenious and simple method of marking farm breeding animals has been used successfully with sheep for eight years by Cooper Curtice of the United States Department of Agriculture at the farm of the bureau of animal industry near Vienna, Va. The system is especially adapted for identifying quickly the extent of pure blood of individuals in herds and flocks being improved with purebred sires. Each animal is labeled with an aluminum tag bearing a number. Females are labeled on the right ear; males on the left. The young are given the dam's number preceded by 1 (or by 10 if the dam's number is a digital number) if it is the first young born; preceded by 2 if the second born, and so on.

This system is quite practical for farm flocks of sheep of less than 100 head, and for cattle. If a purebred sire is being used to grade up a herd or flock of nondescript females, the system affords a very good ever-present record of the grade of animals obtained. For example: The first-born young of female No. 25 will be marked 125. Animal No. 125 is one-half grade. The young of 125 will be 1125, and will be a three-quarters grade. No. 11125 will be seven-eighths, and No. 111125, fifteen-sixteenths. To illustrate further: No. 3125 is the third young of the first young of 25 and a three-quarters grade.

When there is no longer space for additional figures on the label, the sixth or seventh generation may be marked with letters following the number of the original dam. Applied to female No. 25, the young of the sixth generation may be marked 25A; next generation, 25B, and so on. If desired, the sire number may be placed on the reverse side of the label.

This method of identifying animals may be used in conjunction with an ear-notching system, which further identifies them. A good ear-notching plan enables the owner to replace, with assurance as to correct identity, any ear tags that may be lost.

There is only one way to eradicate noxious perennial plants such as wild morning glories or pea vine growths, or whatever kind they may be; and that is to prevent them from making any leaf growth during the last half of summer, or after about July 1. Whatever method you find most convenient for doing this will be the most practical method for you to apply.

Some such plants can be eradicated by pasturing the last half of summer; other methods are to keep the land cultivated the last half of summer, or to keep them cut down with a hoe when in some cultivated crop, such as corn; another method is to smother with straw or by growing some rank growing crop; another is to keep the land mowed close to the ground frequently.

Lack of Cleanliness Is Cause of Calf Disorders

Nearly all disorders or diseases of calves, says the United States Department of Agriculture, are caused either directly or indirectly by lack of cleanliness. Filth, whether it is in feed, pens, bedding, or pails and utensils, is dangerous to the health of the calf. To be on the safe side use nothing but clean milk (sweet or sour), scald the pails or sterilize them with steam, remove old feed from the boxes and clean them daily. Filth and dirt are the natural breeding places of many bacteria that will cause disturbances in the young animal's stomach. Freedom from filth usually means freedom from disease.

Best to Dehorn Calves When but Few Days Old

Dehorning young calves is best done when the calf is a few days old. Clip the hair with a pair of shears where the horn will appear. Rub the button with caustic potash until the dead layer of the skin comes off and it is about ready to bleed. The end of the stick of caustic potash that you apply to the horn should first be moistened and the stick held with a cloth so as not to burn the hand.

If for any reason the operation has been delayed for several weeks the button can be cut off with a sharp knife and the caustic potash applied to kill it. This will kill the horn, but it is better to do it before the calf is a few weeks old.

Pigs Are Benefited by Allowance of Charcoal

Pigs are always benefited by having frequent access to charcoal. The following method of preparing charcoal is very satisfactory: A mass of coals are raked together and set on fire. When the coals are burning briskly oats are poured over the fire until it is all but smothered. In a short time the oats will be well blackened. The fire should then be put out by scattering the burning coals. The coals may continue burning but the fire in the oats will quickly die out. When cold the pigs should be allowed free access to the burned oats. They will greedily search out every particle.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"What's his religion?" asked the House Detective, looking after the man with his collar buttoned behind.
"I did not ask him Kelly," snapped the girl. "I not only did not ask him I didn't care. All I care about is, has anybody got any, not what brand it is."
"Trying to pick out the brand of religion some other fellow has is as useless as judging a woman by the color of her hair. The important thing to investigate is whether she has it."
"I am a good American, but I cannot subscribe to some of the policies of the Puritan ancestors, who took a boat and came to the wilderness, where they could worship in their own way and make everybody else do the same thing."

"We are all headed for heaven. That we take different routes does not matter, so long as we get there. The people who erect the toll gates on the various roads are anxious to have their roads used, and each says that you will never get to the destination over any other road than his, but with a place as popular as heaven, a place that everybody is headed for, you can't tell me that there is only one road leading there. Some roads are rough and poor, some are good roads, but the point is there are some roads everywhere."

"I go my road and pay my toll, but do not fight anybody going another route. Kelly, I am certain I am going to heaven. I am certain I am going to enjoy it, even if I do not play a harp. But the biggest fun I expect to have, when I get there, is watching a lot of Jews, Catholics, Presbyterians, Christian Scientists, Methodists, Holy Rollers, Seventh Day Adventists and Buddhists. Each of 'em will acquire a chronic look of surprise, meeting the others. I know I won't be able to keep my eye on my music while I take my harp lessons, watching their faces."

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS.

In computing his net income for the year, 1933, a taxpayer may deduct from gross income all losses, incurred not only in his business, trade or profession, but in any "transaction entered into for profit" not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

To be allowed, losses not incurred in trade or business must conform closely to the wording of the statute. For example, a loss incurred in the sale of a taxpayer's home, which at the time of purchase was bought without intention of resale is not deductible because it was not a transaction entered into for profit.

Losses sustained in the operation of a farm as a business venture are deductible. If sustained in the operation of a farm operated merely for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer, such losses are not deductible.
